Davidson raps Council on Collins fracas

Planning Commissioner Donald Davidson is unhappy with the procedure the City Council is following in evaluating the duties and responsibilities of City Administrator Jack Collins. In a letter to the council, Davidson says the law-makers should follow the precise meaning of the ordinance it adopted outlining Collins' powers before he was hired 18 months ago. See page 2.

Carmel Citizens Committee evaluates performance by city leaders, expresses concern

The Carmel Citizens Committee, in a letter to the City Council and Planning Commission, reviews the performance of the elected and appointed boards and finds that persistent problems remain unsolved. They are also distressed over the controversy which has erupted over the control that City Administrator Jack Collins retains over employment of city employees. See page 3.

Collins still under fire

The City Council is expected to discuss Monday night the question of how much power they are willing to give to City Administrator Jack Collins. In the meantime, support for Collins has come from many sources, including members of the city staff who say they will speak up at Monday night's meeting. See page 5.

City joins appeal on Carmel Valley Ranch

The City Council voted Monday night to join the Carmel Valley Property Owners Assn. and the Carmel Area Coalition in their appeal of county approval for the first phase of the huge development at Mid-Carmel Valley. The appeal was expected to be filed this week. See page 6.

Should live music be allowed in Carmel?

A 40-year-old law prohibits live music in the business district. A petition is circulating asking the City Council to reverse the law to allow, at least, quiet guitar music. It is sure to be a controversial question. See page 8.

Drastic cuts coming for school district

A stunned school district board of trustees was told that it would have to find a way to slash $600,000 from next year's budget, because of the effects of Proposition 13. Superintendent Carl Wilsey says this would mean program cuts, and, for the first time, teacher layoffs. The $600,000 cut is in addition to the $1 million trimmed from last year's operating budget. Park District happy about acquiring 677 acres of Valley land for $100,000

The directors of the Monterey Peninsula Park District are very happy about the prospect of acquiring 677 acres of choice Carmel Valley land adjacent to Garland Regional Park, for a mere $100,000. The Condon family has offered the land to the district at the low price, but wishes to develop some 50 acres. See story on page 10.

Some upstairs business may be OK?

There are dozens of businesses operating in upstairs locations in the business district. They would be banned if a new law under consideration by the Planning Commission were adopted. Three people who live or work in upstairs units in the downtown district tell how they feel about it in an article appearing on page 9.

Science textbook adopted over objection

School board trustees approved purchase of new science textbooks for Carmel Middle School over the objection of trustee Betty Bell. She argued that it was "putting the cart before the horse," because the science curriculum should really determine which textbooks should be used. See page 11.

Council extends ban on second-story uses

As expected, the City Council extended for eight months the moratorium on conversions of upstairs apartments in the business district to business uses. See page 13.

Commissioner Davidson says Council should follow law on Collins fracas

Dear Editor:

At the first City Council meeting in February (5th), our council will deal with a matter of critical importance to Carmel. They will be reconsidering the job description of city administrator and, more specifically, deciding whether to take away the power to hire and fire department heads and possible other employees, currently invested in that job. If the city administrator is stripped of these powers, as was proposed by a councilman at the last meeting, we will in effect return to the situation that existed prior to August 1977, when we had, in the wise opinion of the council at that time (three of whom interestingly enough are still on the council) a rather inefficient form of city government.

The council at that time decided to change to a pattern strongly resembling a city manager form of government, the results of which have been, in my opinion, a dramatic improvement in the day to day operation of our city's affairs.

Why, I hope you are asking, is our council reconsidering the powers of the city administrator? Having attended a portion of the meeting at which the issue was raised and having reviewed the tapes of the meeting, I believe I can shed some light on the matter but more than that hope I can suggest a genuine area of re-evaluation for our council that will even further enhance our local government's quality of function.

Mr. Collins (the city administrator) included in the materials distributed to the council before its last meeting, the announcement that he had appointed Mr. Ron Warren to the position of chief building inspector. No one on the council had objections to Mr. Warren or his qualifications, but the mayor questioned the "wisdom of doing it (the appointment) when we were thinking about possibly changing the structure of the building and planning departments." He later called it "awkward" to consider changing the number of building inspectors when the position of chief building inspector was filled.

There followed quite a scene, to say the least, and Mr. Collins stated on at least five occasions that the appointment in no way precluded the discussion about and the possible re-structuring of the building and planning departments, a position quite consistent with the intent of Ordinance No. 77-22 which established the city administrator position.

In the course of the discussion that followed, Councilman Brown justified his motion to reconsider the job description of city administrator "because of ongoing problems" though he was never able to

Warren is 'own man'

Re: Pine Knots of Jan. 25, 1979.

If you wish to print the facts for the skeptics, may I recommend going to the horse's mouth (or the other end, depending on your point of view) as Bruce Horovitz did. I would have been glad to talk with you.

The request to rescind my appointment to chief building official was in fact made by me. I did not consult anyone, nor was I contacted or "pressured" by anyone.

I was and am my own man, beholden to no one.

Enough said.

Councilman 'insolent'

Dear Editor:

At the Jan. 15 Carmel City Council meeting, the shocking insolence and incredible bad manners displayed by a recently elected member of the council toward a fellow member has those of us who attended in a state of shock and disbelief.

His pusillanimous attack is, I fear, the measure of the man.

state what problems he was referring to, beyond what seemed purely personal ones. Councilman Gross at one point told Mr. Collins that the appointment had thwarted any effort the council may now or in the future have toward altering the building and planning departments. It was as if three of our councilmen felt that the only time they could consider a policy matter such as re-structuring departments was when it had fortuitously occurred that the department head had resigned, been fired, died, or for some other reason the position was open.

I submit that if members of our City Council feel restricted from any policy matters, including reorganization or number of employees, by the city administrator's actions that are within his authority, then they are clearly unwittingly violating the intent of the August 1977 Ordinance No. 77-22 which established the role of city administrator and defined his relationship with the council. For in that ordinance the council chose to turn over all of the administrative responsibilities of city government to an administrator, which included the responsibility of putting into action any policy or reorganization of any department at any time that the council decides upon.

In other words, the "awkward" aspect of reorganizing the building and planning department or reducing the number of building inspectors is for Mr. Collins to worry about, not for the City Council to worry about. The very creation of the administrator's job originally was to give the council the opportunity to ponder such matters of policy or reorganization without being hampered by the frequently inhibiting considerations and concerns regarding personnel and other clearly administrative matters.

If Mayor Norberg, Councilmen Gross and Brown have found themselves unable to do so, it is perhaps understandable after so many years with the less efficient system of government. But the fault and violation of the intent of the ordinance are theirs; the city administrator is just doing his job.

Mr. Gross said "that it is time the city reconsider its position" and I heartily agree, but I hope it will be a consideration of how the council can more fully participate by the guidelines of Ordinance No. 77-22. The rest of the city has done well under it. I suggest that they try it too ... they might like it.

Pine Knots:

A reasonable voice

By AL EISNER

IT HAS BEEN almost a year since the voters of Carmel elected a slate of people to the City Council that was avowedly dedicated to protecting the interests of the residents of the village.

The election last spring gave Mayor Norberg the overwhelming majority he sought on the City Council to promulgate his programs.

Since that time, he has managed to "pack" the planning commission with appointees who willingly followed his program to "save Carmel" and place the interests of the residents above that of the business community.

This led to a flood of proposed legislation that has polarized the community and led to one controversy after another.

Much of the legislation was ill-advised. Some was dropped. Other proposed laws were announced and later modified because of the howls of protest from persons affected by the new laws.

Other restrictive laws were passed, but the results are questionable, since it is difficult and sometimes impossible to enforce zoning laws.

In the meantime, serious problems that have faced the city for years are ignored.

Businessmen in Carmel have been highly critical of the way in which the city was being managed by the Norberg administration. Residents discounted the opposition, rationalizing that it was the self-interest of the "greedy businessmen" that made them raise their voices.

Now, however, criticism comes from another quarter. The highly respected Carmel Citizens Committee, in a letter to the City Council and planning commission (reprinted on this page) raises many of the same issues that were pointed out by businessmen, some city councilmen and others over the past year.

We urge everyone to read the document. In reasonable, temperate language, it is highly critical of the actions of the Norberg administration.

Read this, for example:

We are disturbed by the extension of the authority of the city over the size, planning, designing and renting of residences in detailed ways which, taken together, will add significantly both to restrictions on property owners and to paperwork in City Hall. When the planning commission recommends and the City Council approves new, more restrictive ordinances for the residential area without knowing how many residents are affected or how many residential properties are being made non-conforming, it is time, we believe, to pause and reconsider the propriety of the actions."

The letter closes with this:

"The board of directors of the Carmel Citizens Committee appreciates the time and effort given by elected and appointed officials in conducting the business of the city. We hope that their attention will be directed towards matters of major significance to the citizens of Carmel in 1979."

To this we say, "Amen."

Task force to draft new plan for growth management in county

A citizen task force of environmental and development spokesmen has been given until May 1 to find a way to bring managed growth to Monterey County.

The county Board of Supervisors, on a unanimous vote, created the task force Tuesday and ordered it to recommend an annual growth quota and a way to determine the rate of growth for each of eight regions of Monterey County.

At the same time the supervisors told Planning Director Ed DeMars to bring them a budget for the new staff he will need to implement a growth management system into the county General Plan by the end of 1979.

The supervisors rejected a planning commission proposal for an interim annual growth rate of 1 percent of existing housing stock, a total of 947 homes and apartments, during 1979. They indicated the growth rate they finally adopt may be based on the historical rate of development in the county and limitations on growth imposed by problems providing water, sewer and road service, and schools for new developments.

The task force will be appointed next Tuesday by the supervisor. It will include representatives of the Monterey County Building Trade Council, the county Association of General Contractors, the League of Women Voters, the Sierra Club, a South County representative, a spokesman for low-cost housing groups, a planning commissioner and a member of the board of supervisors.

Admitting that 90 days is a brief time to complete the job before the task force, Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck said after the meeting she believes the panel will produce results.

"They'll do it or the board (of supervisors) will do it and they'll be out of the ball game," she said flatly.

If it cannot come up with a recommendation, she said, the matter will "go back to staff and the planning commission and I'm not going to listen to people saying they haven't had a chance to comment."

Citizens Committee concerned over direction of city

Members of the Carmel City Council and Planning Commission
City of Carmel
Carmel, CA 93923

Gentlemen:

After reviewing the work of the Carmel city government for the past several months, the board of directors of the Carmel Citizens Committee respectfully presents the following comments to members of the council, city officials and members of commissions.

We support the present authority of the city administrator. Because of the efficiency of the regular operations of the city government, we feel that the powers given to his position at the time of his appointment are justified.

We approve the use of ad hoc committees to consider special problems. Citizen participation in city government on a non-partisan basis is a positive and useful force. The people who give time to this work feel amply rewarded when their conclusions are given careful consideration. The council should also understand their disappointment when nothing results from their service on such committees.

The zeal of the members of the council and the planning commission to protect the residential character of the community is commendable. Too often, however, ordinances are proposed and in some cases even passed which deal shortsightedly with long-range and complex problems. A great deal of time in meetings has been spent in discussing and re-discussing hastily considered proposals, the city staff is burdened, and the effectiveness of city government is diminished.

We are concerned over the following actions:

- We question the council's decision to contribute city funds to the Tor House Foundation since Carmel citizens seem unlikely to receive significant benefits from the proposed arrangement.

- The reversal of the previous council's policy supporting some improvements for Highway 1 south of Carpenter Street is unwise. Traffic will inevitably increase. To delay relief of the already serious congestion will adversely affect the residents of this area.

- We are disturbed by the size of the annual budget and by the fact that the council is making the financing of the city dependent on the success of the tourist industry.

- We are equally disturbed by the extension of the authority of the city over the size, planning, designing, and renting of residences in detailed ways which, taken together, will add significantly both to restrictions on property owners and to paperwork in City Hall. When the planning commission recommends and the City Council approves new, more restrictive ordinances for the residential area without knowing how many residents are affected or how many residential properties are being made non-conforming, it is time, we believe, to pause and reconsider the propriety of the actions.

- We believe the following projects require immediate attention: The parking problem which we feel the city should be addressing is the excessive parking by business people in the residential area. In lieu parking funds have been collected for a number of years and the city should proceed with the purchase of land on the periphery of the commercial district. We believe the preferential parking plan for residents will further decrease the number of spaces available to residents and visitors alike through the reduction of turnover.

- The provision of public rest rooms in the city center is important. It is disgraceful when visitors must be directed to the two chemical toilets still lingering in the Library parking lot.

- An engineer has finally been hired to design a new sea wall. We hope there will be no further delays in accomplishing this vital project.

- We expect to see a clear, understandable budget for 1979-1980 since the new finance director has been effective in improving accounting procedures. We hope the council will distinguish between major needs and minor wants, i.e., the unnecessary expenditure of funds for the proposed construction of a new office for the mayor. In addition, we expect the council to regard realistically both the sources of funding and possible changes by the state Legislature in providing funds for local government as an aftermath of Proposition 13.

The board of directors of the Carmel Citizens Committee appreciates the time and effort given by elected and appointed officials in conducting the business of the city. We hope that their attention will be directed towards matters of major significance to the citizens of Carmel in 1979.

Deplores emotional outbursts

Dear Editor:

It is a very simple matter for the council to change, eliminate, or increase the budget for any department in the city, and to instruct the administrator in its wishes for the organization of the department. Under our present ordinances it is then up to the administrator to accomplish the purposes of the city government by professional use of the funds and organization provided.

Mayor Norberg helped write these ordinances, but has never wanted to abide by them. The excellent appointment of Miss O'Hearne was made an embarrassing procedure until his ego was appeased. Now the logical and reasonable appointment of Mr. Warren has been put into limbo until he goes into a trance about the "wisdom" of it.

Mr. Brown no longer gives the department heads the benefit of his long-winded inexperience on matters where he used to enjoy puttering, and he has always resented the fact that the new city administrator code tends to keep him away from what he regarded as his toys, since the departments are now run on a professional basis.

We have in Mr. Collins an energetic, able administrator, who has made a productive team out of a group of not quite so productive little empires. Of course he has made mistakes. Anyone who has to make thousands of decisions is going to make some. His errors have been those of action, rather than delay, and he has the enthusiastic and productive cooperation of the city employees.

It is to be hoped that the council will attempt to proceed by the ordinance. If changes are to be made they should be made for logical, considered reasons, not emotional outbursts with displays of questionable motives and manners.

Opposes rental limits to the City Council

Gentlemen and Ladies:

It has recently come to my attention that you are considering a proposal to limit residential rentals to periods of a month or longer. As far as I am concerned, this would be a drastic step and very prejudicial to many people who have loved Carmel for years, but now, due to time shortages, cannot rent in Carmel for as long as a month's stay. Let me tell you briefly about my love-affair with Carmel.

I am 52 years old and have spent several years of my life in Carmel. When I was a baby, my family took rentals for the entire summer every year. I spent every day on the beautiful beach, and was carefully taught by my family to keep it clean and appetizing for others.

I went for long walks as I grew up, and walked to Sunday Mass at the Mission. I learned the street names, the places of interest—and the natural beauty of the area became part of me.

Now, each year we come back to visit three or four times. I don't feel like a tourist, as I can direct anyone to their destination. Two or three times a year we stay at the Colonial Terrace. But once a year, we rent for one week or 10 days the same little cottage near Carmel Point. The neighbors all greet us affectionately and know our St. Bernards by name. We walk the dogs on leashes both on the beach and in town, being very careful that they, too, do nothing to upset the beauty of Carmel.

Due to business pressures (we are self-employed) my husband and I are unable to lease for a month, but it would be terrible if we couldn't come to Carmel at all. We need a house, because our son and his college friends and our 26-year-old daughter like to come down also.

I can understand why you want to limit tourism—we have that problem in Tiburon also—but it seems to me that you will cut off your nose to spite your face. There are some of us who consider Carmel their second home, but are still unable to spend as much time as we'd like to in Carmel.

I hate to sound commercial, but at least as far as I am concerned, I spend a good deal of our "spendable income" when we come to Carmel. I do patronize the shops, especially those away from Ocean Avenue who deal primarily with the "locals." We often walk to town, so we won't have the parking hassle, and very often I will help visitors and guide them to a good restaurant, or a nice shop. I am also a member of the Friends of the Sea Otter.

Please consider us and others with our plight. It may be that we only come to Carmel four times a year—but we are Carmelites when we're there.

Mrs. Rupert L. Jernigan

Surprised at naivete

Dear Editor:

It came as a surprise to find such naivete in two council members in what is a normal procedure in the corporate world—the yearly review of new employees and their positions.

This is the time contracts are taken from the file, evaluated and discussed. It is generally called "performance and salary review." It does not necessarily mean that either employer or employee is displeased, most often it's to determine where the business is going and how it's going to be accomplished.

The yearly budget of Carmel is over $2 million and while next to ITT or GTE it seems small; running a city is a business. I, for one, am pleased we have some knowledgeable council people who realize this and want to run it as such.

I find it difficult to believe Mr. Collins, with his experience, is unfamiliar with "reviews" and I would hope he employs the six-month or yearly review with his employees.

If, as reported, Mr. Brunn's behavior of Jan. 15 is an indication of his stability as a councilman, I'm sure many of us are giving second thoughts to our support.

The tree in question is in the middle of my lot, over 30 feet from the back line. All of the major limbs on one side are dead, having been seriously burned several years ago and protrude 10 or 15 feet toward the street, due to a fire that completely destroyed the home.

The head of the forestry commission was sent to inspect this tree. His decision was that it was still healthy (alive) and should remain. I appealed to the council to reverse this decision.

The entire council then examined the tree to make a final decision. Without even looking at my plans, the mayor, with the deciding vote, decided the tree should stand.

Now, if I am to build with a 20-foot setback in the front of the lot and 40-feet or more from the rear in order to be clear of dead limbs, and still provide two off-street parking places, exclusive of driveway, just what is left of my building site?

The head of forestry tells me there is enough room left to build a house (but not mine), and on what authority does he make this judgment?

So where does this leave me? I can't build my home and neither would I be able to sell the lot. Who would buy a lot with two large trees 16 feet and over 30 feet, respectively, both in the center of the lot, neither of which may be removed?

My sense of justice is confused.

Opposes proposed law

Carmel City Council
P.O. Box CC
Carmel, Calif. 93921

Representatives:

It has come to my attention that there is a proposed ordinance being forwarded to the Carmel City Council from the Carmel City Planning Commission which advocates specifying the length of time a homeowner will be allowed to rent his or her property.

Such a measure is a serious infraction against the fundamental principles and "bundle of rights" inherent in the traditional meaning of property ownership in this country. There is no justification to inhibit the right of a property owner to allow occupancy of his or her home for any length of time specifically, whether or not this is for compensation.

The very idea of requiring owners to deliver to the city clerk a statement of names, addresses and periods of time guests reside in our homes is an obnoxious infringement on our rights as property owners, and one which reinforces bureaucratic red tape at the expense of the taxpayer.

Surely the Carmel Planning Commission has better issues of importance and concern on which to expend its time and energy than those of this sort which are wholly within the law of our land. If, in fact, this issue is pursued by the planning commission and the City Council, there will emerge a confrontation in which the homeowners will make sure that our intrinsic rights are upheld.

Please be assured that controls such as this will not be tolerated by homeowners in Carmel and strength exists in this sector which will summon the necessary litigation to protect our rights.

'Small town, small minds'

Dear Editor:

Small towns breed small minds. Or so it would seem, judging by the thoughts and actions of some of the Carmel City Council members regarding the matter of City Administrator Jack Collins. Apparently they are disturbed over Mr. Collins having the temerity to exercise the very rights and responsibilities they gave him in Ordinance No. 77-22, passed unanimously by the City Council and signed by Mayor Norberg on Aug. 5, 1977.

Carmel is, and I hope always will be, a small town. It is also unique. The people who live here are by no means small-minded; rather, they represent a melding of the rich, the successful, the talented, the traveled, the seeking, and those who have found something worth caring about.

I truly can't believe that anyone wants a return to an antiquated form of government in which politicians set up dukedoms and play off one department against another. I ran for office, was elected, and consented to serve as a city councilman with the understanding that the council would be a policy-making body, conducting itself and the business of Carmel in a professional manner.

I admire and respect professionalism in business, art, and politics, and feel that Jack Collins has exemplified that attitude in his conduct as city administrator.

Department heads have already come to the support of the city administrator. So has the former mayor, Bernard Anderson; in a letter to the Carmel Pine Cone. It is my hope that the citizens of Carmel will make their feelings known to the council on this matter. Join us, Monday, Feb. 5, 8 p.m., Carmel City Hall, when this matter is on the agenda.

I hope the members of the council who have raised this issue, having had time to reconsider, will now, bury it and prove me wrong. Small towns may breed small minds, but not in Carmel.

City action 'capricious'

Dear City Planners and Council Members:

As a current property owner in Carmel, and a longtime visitor and vacationer, usually two weeks or less at a time since the early 1930s, I feel compelled to comment on your capriciousness regarding less than 30-day rentals.

Short-term rentals less than 30 days have been a way of life in Carmel for at least 50 years or more. Most of the people that presently own homes and have chosen to retire or work here were at one time or another a short-term tenant or visitor.

It is incongruous and grossly unfair to single out the owners of a residence, who feel it necessary, for security and or financial reasons, to rent their future retirement home on a less than 30-day basis.

What do the council and planning commissioners plan to do with the motels, inns, hotels and converted houses that are operating commercially in residential neighborhoods; i.e., Colonial Terrace Inn, The Sandpiper Inn, Cottages-by-the-Sea, Edgemere Cottages, Mission Ranch Motel, and San Antonio House just to mention a few?

Most people accept these operations in a residential neighborhood with a degree of intelligent understanding, but apparently some of our local politicians and officials are very little people on great big ego trips.

It seems that one of the commissioners has been upset because she and her husband "have had our privacy violated" by noisy weekend renters in the residential area. If the council and commission members want to see some real invasion of privacy, noise, pollution, and downright loud and vulgar happenings they should concentrate on the task of improving the almost daily native circus in and about the foot of Ocean Avenue along Scenic Avenue to 13th to San Antonio Avenue back to Ocean Avenue. This to me and many others is the most invaded and polluted area in Carmel presently.

Either Carmel is totally free of major problems or else the elected officials are wearing blinders. Please take your blinders off and get down to the necessary major work that needs to be done.

Assails Coastal Commission

Dear Editor:

I have just seen something that startled me and shocked me, and gave me further proof (if I needed any at this time) that the California Coastal Commission is sorely in need of some sort of control, and that the Coastal Act itself is in dire need of remedial legislation.

The case in point: Two mammoth holes in the ground at Otter Cove, just south of Carmel Highlands on Highway 1. These holes that look like some massive architectural "Dig" somewhere in South America are actually holes in which two homes will be placed, then covered over (we assume) with the tons of dirt neatly piled in gargantuan pyramid-like mounds.

And these two homes must be buried like some sort of expensive garbage because somebody has told the California Coastal Commission that absolutely no vestiges of dwelling places may be "visible" from Highway 1.

Strange that many people pay great sums of money to tour various areas of the world and this country just to view lovely homes. Yet we seem to be compelled to hide well-designed and well-constructed homes underground lest they offend the eye of the traveling motorist on Highway 1. Surely there is a great deal of ocean view to be seen, without devastating the terrain in this manner.

We won't even think of the ghastly cost that the new owner is subjected to in working out this subterranean home.

Who decided that this legalized rape of the California Coast should be the price to pay for a permit to build? What kind of responsibility is this to make the price to pay for a home so very high? These homes are not lofty motels or noisy restaurants; they are single-family dwellings and the earth at Otter Cove has been scarred by this tearing into the guts of the land in order to "bury" homes!

Sometimes it seems that some of our overly zealous so-called "environmentalists" are doing more to damage our glorious coast than the individual, established coastal homeowner who loves his coast and takes pride in his home and its care and maintenance.

Otter Cove looks awful now. Let us hope that the damage done to the area will not be permanent. But let's hope that the California Coastal Council, a group of over 6,000 property owners who are dedicated to reforming the California Coastal Commission will take some sort of remedial legislative action before any more damage to our coast can occur!

COLLINS STILL UNDER FIRE

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

THE BATTLE LINES are drawn.

At stake is the job of Carmel's city administrator and the powers commanded by the number one city employee.

The controversy, which has been brewing for weeks, is expected to erupt in verbal fireworks at Monday night's Carmel City Council meeting.

Supporters for beleaguered City Administrator Jack Collins, who is under fire from council members for what some believe to be misuse of his city personnel hiring policies, are expected to turn out in force and defend him.

The explosive issue was triggered earlier this month when Collins appointed Ron Warren to the post of chief building inspector. But after the stormy council session Jan. 15, Collins backed down and postponed Warren's appointment.

But the crucial issue here, as Councilman Mike Brown pointed out, is the very definition of the job of the city administrator.

"It's a mistake to just concern ourselves with Jack (Collins). The real issue is the position he holds," Brown said.

Department heads from all of Carmel's city-run offices have offered Collins their full support. Many are expected to defend their boss at the 8 p.m. council session.

LAST WEEK, a council majority said it might be prepared to relieve Collins of his key administrative powers of city personnel firing and hiring.

However, two crucial council votes appear to be wavering. They are those of Brown and Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg.

Although Norberg continued to tongue-lash Collins last week in a Pine Cone interview, he, nevertheless, admitted he doesn't want to fire Collins.

Brown, another outspoken Collins critic, said Friday that he wants to keep Collins but redefine his job.

Should the council vote Monday to strip Collins of his powers as Carmel's chief employer, it is probable Collins will quit, one department head confided.

Collins, however, has steadfastly declined to comment on the matter.

DEPARTMENT HEAD support behind Collins is an important point, Brown conceded.

But Brown still believes the administrative job, itself, needs to be redefined.

"It's hard to separate the man from the job, though ... I'm getting complaints from residents about Jack. This has gone on for months," Brown said.

He would not state which residents have complained to him. "They assumed they were talking to me in confidence. I receive these complaints three or four times a month," he added.

The council would be "irresponsible" not to re-evaluate the city administrator slot, Brown said. "We're trying to be very open, straightforward and honest; we're going to deal with it in a public session," Brown said.

Last week five city department heads told the Pine Cone that actions to divest Collins of his power to hire and fire would be disastrous.

COUNCILMAN HOWARD BRUNN is prepared to lay his council seat on the line behind Collins. He is Collins' most vocal supporter.

"If the majority of the City Council decides to restructure Jack's (Collins) job, then I have very little in common with them. The majority of the people in this village will have little left in common with them," Brunn said.

Brunn would not confirm or deny that a change in Collins' status would cause him to quit the council seat he has held since March.

Brunn said he conferred about Collins with Norberg last week. That is the first time the two have discussed a city issue outside of a council meeting since the March election, Brunn said.

Brunn was not enthusiastic about the outcome of his private discussion with Norberg.

"I still have absolutely no idea why they want to take away his (Collins') powers. I was appalled when it was first brought up ... and I still am," Brunn said.

NORBERG ACCUSED Collins of acting like a "sixth councilman," in an interview Friday.

"It is a point that has become troublesome. He is grinding the ax until we vote ... Collins should not argue on whether we should or should not do something. His job is to provide us with data. The city staff and city councilmen are supposedly separate entities," the mayor insisted.

Asked if Collins should continue as Carmel's city administrator, Norberg said, "Yes, I think so. But that's a matter we'll talk about at the meeting."

Collins' Jan. 15 appointment of Ron Warren as the new chief building inspector

"seemed a fly in the face of an unresolved problem," Norberg said.

That appointment killed the planned overhaul of the city's building department. "It was a foolish thing to do," Norberg said of Collins' action.

Collins is taking "too large a hand" in the making of city policy, Norberg added. "I have heard from people who elected me that they are puzzled by it," he said.

The mayor belittled department head support that has rallied behind Collins.

"They had better like him or they're in trouble ... remember, he's their boss," Norberg said.

WHEN THE COUNCIL was prepared to hire a city administrator and grant him hiring and firing powers in mid-1977, city staffers pleaded with the council not to do it.

"I vividly remember ... those department heads came separately to each councilman, saying, 'for heaven's sake don't do it,' " the mayor stressed.

When the council met Jan. 15, a verbal skirmish ensued after Collins announced Warren's appointment to the top building department post. The council majority reacted with anger, accusing Collins of thwarting its effort to reorganize the building and planning departments. His appointment of Warren precluded the proposed departmental shake up, councilmen argued.

Collins said the appointment would have no effect on departmental plans.

Less than one day after the council threatened to strip administrative powers from Collins, Warren asked the city administrator to postpone his promotion. And Collins agreed.

School board limits college classes to 11th, 12th graders

Although state legislation now permits any Carmel Unified School District student to take classes at a junior college, the district board of trustees voted last week to keep the program restricted to high school juniors and seniors.

The unanimous board vote supported the position of Superintendent Carl Wilsey, who cited financial reasons as his main objection to the proposal.

Carmel High School Principal Dan Stevenson said the new law that permits students from nursery school to 12th grade to enroll at a junior college is "just special interest legislation" to increase income for the two-year institutions in the wake of Proposition 13 tax revenue losses.

Under state law before Jan. 1, only a limited percentage of high school juniors and seniors could take college courses in lieu of high school classes.

The new law eliminates the percentage restrictions and opens the program to gifted students regardless of grade, with parental consent.

But the Carmel district would have to pay $42.50 per college unit for students below the 11th grade, Wilsey told the board. With seven high school freshmen interested in eight courses this spring, and classes averaging three units each, it would cost the district more than $1,000, he said.

Juniors and seniors can take the courses at no cost to the district, he added.

Trustee Frances Gaver said it would be "a disservice" to most lower grade students to enroll them in college classes before their junior year in high school because they would not be prepared for the courses.

Stevenson added that the district would still have to pay for the classes even if the students dropped them after the semester began.

In individual cases where a gifted student cannot find challenging courses at the high school, Stevenson said the district could enter into a special contract to allow him to take college courses before his junior year.

Stained-glass signs (art?) must go

The four-foot stained-glass hamburger must go.

Also outlawed are the stained-glass fried chicken, fried egg and apple pie replicas that since December have decorated the picture windows of the Carmel Kitchen restaurant in Carmel Plaza.

The four objects, valued at $10,000, are signs and not artwork, the Board of Adjustments ruled Jan. 24. The vote was unanimous.

"They are clearly signs depicting what is sold in the restaurant," said Commissioner Sandy Swain.

Commissioner Dr. Donald Davidson agreed, saying, "I don't see how we can determine them to be anything but signs."

"Carmel's sign ordinance is unconstitutionally vague and broad. A sign can be anything that attracts attention to anything else. On the ludicrous side, according to your code, a sign could be an attractive salesperson in a window," argued Martin H. Kresse, a Monterey attorney representing the Carmel Kitchen.

But the board wouldn't buy that argument.

"To deal with the definition of the sign ordinance is not under the jurisdiction of this committee," said Davidson.

Despite the board's ruling, the signs were still up Monday.

"I don't think this is the end of it," said Kresse. He did not, however, state what actions Carmel Kitchen owner Steven Jacobs is planning.

The matter could be appealed to the Carmel City Council.

THE MASSIVE STRUCTURE in the photo is designed to keep cash and valuables safe. The vault for the 5,880-square-foot Monterey Savings and Loan Association office under construction at the northeast corner of San Carlos and Sixth is being built with walls of 12-inch reinforced concrete. Originally scheduled for completion at the end of June, officials now predict the new office will be ready to open after Oct. 1. An entire 4,000-square-foot lot will be given over to customer parking.

City joins appeal on CV Ranch

By KEN PETERSON

A COALITION of citizen groups and the city of Carmel filed a joint appeal Wednesday challenging the Monterey County Planning Commission approval of subdivision plans for the Carmel Valley Ranch.

The appeal was filed with the Monterey County Board of Supervisors just two days after the Carmel City Council voted to join in the action.

The board will set a hearing date for the appeal next Tuesday at 10 a.m. The first choice of a date is Feb. 27, although that can be changed if the developer or a member of the public prefers another day.

The appeal challenges the 140-unit phase of the project on three grounds:

- The developers have not proved the existence of the Tularcitos aquifer as a separate source of water for future construction on the property. Water for the first phase would come from the California-American Water Co.

• Construction of the Carmel Valley Road-Robinson Canyon Road interchange to handle traffic generated by the project, should accompany the first phase rather than wait until 160 homes and condominiums have been built on the property.

• Proposed on-site treatment of sewage for the project could endanger the Carmel Valley aquifer, which supplies water for residents of Carmel, Carmel Valley and much of the rest of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Carmel City Council voted 4-0 to join the Carmel Area Coalition and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association in the appeal. Councilman Mike Brown abstained because he is a member of the Coalition.

City Attorney George Brehmer said the council could justify its action because of such potential negative effects on the city as increased traffic on Highway 1 and the greater volume of sewage disposal.

Traffic, he said, would affect the city through increased noise and air pollution.

The development, located at Mid-Valley, could increase the burden on the Carmel Sanitary District if it is accepted into the district. Carmel sewage is treated at the district plant on the Carmel River.

The only dissension in the council action came in arguments about the merits of challenging the project on the water supply issue.

Edwin Lee, a Carmel Valley resident who has been active in local water management planning, said there is "a lack of credibility" in using water as an argument against the project.

But John Logan, a hydrologist and a recent appointee to the Carmel Planning Commission, disagreed.

He said plans to dispose of treated wastewater on a golf course "within a few hundred feet of some of Cal-Am's largest wells" is a cause for concern.

Although the present appeal involves only 140 units of the Carmel Valley Ranch project, the developers have a Specific Plan permitting up to 500 homes and a 100-unit hotel on the property south of the Carmel River.

An 18-hole golf course with clubhouse is under development and a 12-court tennis club is nearing completion.

The developers have agreed to provide public trail access to a 1,200-acre open space area at the south end of the property, and on trails around the golf course on the Carmel River.

Other major conditions include paying for the Robinson Canyon Road-Carmel Valley Road interchange and a portion of the cost of widening Carmel Valley Road to four lanes as far east as Mid-Valley.

Councilman Brown to unveil plan to give residents voice on annexation

CARMEL CITY COUNCILMAN Mike Brown declared this week that he has come up with a last-ditch strategy to make sure Carmel residents get a voice in any decision to annex Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields.

Brown, who has staunchly defended the rights of Carmel residents to vote on the issue, declined to disclose details of his plan before Monday evening's meeting of the Carmel City Council.

"I have an idea that I think might work," Brown said. "I've talked with some people in Sacramento about it, and they thought it was unique and ingenious."

Brown said his concept would not preclude a protest hearing. He also stated that he had no interest in taking the annexation matter to court.

"I'm not so sure that would necessarily solve the problem," he said.

The council Monday will probably set an annexation protest hearing date for residents of Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields areas.

That hearing will be scheduled at Sunset

Center within the next 45 days, according to City Administrator Jack Collins.

Despite protests, the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) rejected a bid by the Carmel City Council to restore the proposed annexation to the original boundaries.

When it met Jan. 23, the LAFCO board voted unanimously that it would not reconsider the council's request. Board members said there was no substantial change in the evidence presented since they recommended the halved annexation boundaries in November.

The proposed annexation originally included Mission Fields and Carmel Point.

For the protest hearing, opponents of annexation must gather signatures of 25 percent of the registered voters and property owners in the two affected areas to force an election. If more than 50 percent of the registered voters oppose the idea, the issue fails without an election.

LAFCO's latest ruling strips any annexation voice from Carmel residents. The Brown has idea on annexation

residents would have voted in the annexation issue only if it had increased the assessed valuation or number of Carmel voters by 50 percent. In this case, it does not.

BROWN'S IDEA could center on an "economic impact report," that he mentioned at the Jan. 24 LAFCO board meeting.

"What we should be looking at is this one question: What will it cost?" Brown said.

"If people are annexed they should not become stepchildren. They should have the same level of services as Carmel's residents," Brown stated.

Brown said he was "disappointed" that the LAFCO board "didn't even allow" reconsideration of the annexation issue.

CARMEL RESIDENTS are split 50-50 on annexation, Brown estimated. "The problem is, people are coming from an emotional level instead of basing their opinions on the facts."

Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norbert said he anticipates that on Monday the council will set a protest hearing date. "At least, that is my view," he said.

If Carmel residents did have the vote, would they vote against annexation?

"I doubt it," Norberg said.

Norberg has supported increasing the size of Carmel's city limits for more than 20 years.

NORBERG HAS also complained of waste in the city's building and planning departments. He wants to combine the two departments under a single department head.

"A single planning director should be in charge of all those things," Norberg said Friday.

That matter, too, is scheduled for council study Monday evening.

Two reports received by the council last fall recommended restructuring the two departments. One was independently written by Robert Stephenson, the Carmel Planning Commission chairman. The other was prepared by architect Eivin Falk.

The council held the issue in abeyance for nearly four months. With the resignation of Fred Cunningham from the chief building inspector post in December, the council saw an opportunity to rearrange the department.

Objections were raised when City Administrator Jack Collins appointed Ron Warren to fill the top spot two weeks ago. That interfered with the council's deliberations on reorganization, councilmen said. Warren asked that his appointment be withdrawn. Collins approved the action and the department is now operating without a chief.

Live music in Carmel

Petition drive seeks to overturn ban on music

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

*"If music were against the law,
I would have been born in jail."
Guilty of Rock and Roll
—by Neil Goldberg*

STEFANI MISTRETTA of Carmel could have been arrested last weekend.

Her crime is playing the guitar in Carmel restaurants that serve alcoholic beverages.

For the past three weekends, Miss Mistretta has violated a 40-year-old local law that forbids live entertainment in Carmel bars and restaurants. The intent of the law is to maintain the serenity of the village.

"It's crazy," said Miss Mistretta. "You can get a license to be a fortune-teller in Carmel, but I'm not allowed to play my guitar."

The controversy over Miss Mistretta's guitar playing has triggered a petition drive to allow her to play.

More than a dozen Carmel restaurant owners and one Carmel city councilman agree that the law is outdated.

SINCE 1939, it has been against the law in Carmel to permit live entertainment in bars or restaurants.

The city fathers knew they couldn't stop the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board from issuing licenses to bars. But if Carmel had to have taverns, at least they would be quiet establishments, the council decreed. There was to be no dancing or live music allowed in places that sold any type of alcoholic beverage.

The law stood for 34 years before it was tested.

Then, in 1973, the Musicians' Association of Monterey County Local 616 took the city to court. Union leaders claimed the law was unconstitutional.

A Monterey Superior Court judge ruled the law was valid.

The musicians went elsewhere ... Until last month.

MISS MISTRETTA, a 30-year-old folk guitarist, stepped into a Carmel cafe and strummed a few chords on her unamplified instrument.

No one arrested her. The owners didn't toss her out the front door. As a matter of fact, the noisy crowd quieted down and listened to her ballads for the next two hours.

Now she wants to make her living playing soft guitar music in Carmel restaurants or bars.

But a city ordinance, a possible $25 fine and maybe the threat of a jail sentence prohibit Miss Mistretta from doing that.

UNLIKE THE MUSICIANS' union that had little support in their lawsuit six years ago, Miss Mistretta has rallied a surprising amount of support.

The law can only be changed by council action, according to Carmel City Attorney George Brehmer. A public hearing might not be required, because the law is not listed under the city's zoning code, he said.

The two-part law forbids any live entertainment or any live music in places that serve alcohol. A portion of the law reads:

"It shall be unlawful for any person engaged in the business of selling alcoholic beverages ... to cause or permit to be played, any musical instruments on the premises ..."

COUNCILMAN HOWARD Brunn said he would have "no objection" to quiet guitar music in a Carmel bar or restaurant. To back up his statement, Brunn has signed a petition that states he is willing to modify the stringent ordinance on a trial basis.

"It appears to me that if you can have

STEFANI MISTRETTA, a Carmel folk guitarist, wants to entertain in Carmel bars and restaurants. But a 40-year-old city ordinance forbids live entertainment in places that serve alcoholic beverages.

loud tapes and FM radios in bars, I see no objection to guitar music," Brunn said. Brunn made it clear that he would never approve of rock 'n' roll or other loud music here. He also noted that he "did not know how it would be possible" to legislate for only certain types of music. "That's something you'll have to take up with the city attorney."

Asked that question, City Attorney Brehmer replied, "That is up to the council."

"It is difficult to be in favor of the change without sounding like you're trying to ruin the town," Brunn said. "But classic guitar music lends an ambiance that is desirable, and may be a step forward for the village."

CARMEL MAYOR Gunnar Norberg is singing a different tune.

"The law should stay as it is," Norberg said. "If we do something superficially laudable, that opens the door. Then some smart lawyer will open the door all the way ... look at Seaside. All kinds of things go on there that are called live entertainment."

"The argument that we will have topless entertainment in Carmel if we have music here is simply nonsense," responded Steven Jacobs, an owner of the Carmel Plaza and a San Francisco resident.

"Instead of changing the whole law, it should just be modified. But it is not good legislation to say we can't have a classic guitarist play at a Plaza restaurant because that will eventually lead to a striptease joint," Jacobs said.

"The law is just plain bad," said Mel Hawkins, 15-year president of the Musicians Association of Monterey County Local 616. "It doesn't make any sense. It is okay to limit decibel levels. But what is a guitar player going to do besides give someone work and someone else enjoyment?"

A SIMILAR QUESTION was asked in a lawsuit filed against the city in May 1973. The suit was filed by the Musicians' Union. Superior Court Judge Nat A. Agliano ruled in favor of the city.

His intended decision said, in part: "There is sufficient evidence ... that entertainment in conjunction with the sale and consumption of alcohol, creates certain conditions and police problems which the city's elected officials justifiably seek to avoid in order to maintain the unique character of this city."

Agliano's 1974 decision concluded: "That a local municipality must, in light of state law, permit the sale and use of alcoholic beverages within its territory does not necessarily mean that it must also permit entertainment on the same premises. Further, no unconstitutional infringement on the right of expression and free speech appears in this case."

Judge Agliano commented on that five-year-old decision this week.

"I may not agree with the council's philosophy behind the law, but that's beside the point. Unless more recent decisions

'I wouldn't want

*San Jose bikers roaring down Ocean Avenue
looking for a disco'*

have been handed down by the higher courts, if it were tested again, I'd say the outcome would have to be the same," Agliano said.

BREHMER REPRESENTED the city. He produced these arguments that swayed the court in the city's favor:

- Many apartments are located in Carmel's commercial district. The noise could distract residents.

- The Carmel City Code does not list nightclubs or cabarets as permitted or conditional uses.

- There are numerous nightclubs near the city.

- More than 30 percent of Carmel's residents are over 65. Other cities, such as Monterey, have under 3 percent.

- Carmel's commercial district is surrounded by the residential district.

- Live music would attract more people to drive into Carmel. Residents who walk in the narrow, unlit streets at night would be forced to change their habits.

- The combination of alcohol and live entertainment causes rowdiness. That would be contrary to the village character.

- Music would increase street traffic and street noise.

AN ATTORNEY for the plaintiffs responded: "Normal street and traffic noises are the price paid for the modern way of life. It seems strange to argue that constitutionally guaranteed freedoms can be impinged in order that Carmel may forego the inconvenience of normal street noises."

"The city of Carmel wishes not only to keep fun-seeking non-residents out, but wishes to foist resident fun-seekers off on other communities. It would, indeed, be a sad state of affairs if every community adopted this same provincial attitude."

Under testimony, Clyde Klaumann, former Carmel police chief, stated that live entertainment in Carmel would require that two additional policemen patrol the business district.

Carmel Police Chief William Ellis said last week, it depends on the type of music and where it is played.

"I don't know if the music by itself presents a problem," Ellis said. But he added, "Live music in bars would tend to bring in more people ... and probably present some problems."

Police have never arrested anyone for disregarding the present city ordinance that bans music with booze, according to Ellis.

"But we don't disregard it," he noted. Police give warnings, "or sometimes the music is so soft, that no one calls us and complains," he said.

There have been numerous examples of the latter.

Miss Mistretta has performed in three different Carmel restaurants in the past three weeks. She accepted no pay for her work.

MY MUSIC doesn't make people rowdy. It usually quiets them down," explained Miss Mistretta.

Two Carmel restaurant owners admit that occasionally they have allowed soft guitar music on their premises.

Another half-dozen have been known to permit live music at times.

"Sure," said Steve McComb, owner of the Hacienda restaurant on Dolores near Fifth. "I take out my guitar and play when my customers request it."

"Technically, I could get arrested just for singing Happy Birthday to a customer," McComb stated.

Even the tiny La Boheme restaurant on Dolores near Seventh has had on

*'It's crazy. You can get a license to be a fortune-teller in Carmel, but I'm not allowed to play
my guitar.'*

Some businesses seem appropriate on second floors in business district

'People should be free to choose what they want to do in a business zone'

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

THERE ARE MORE than two sides to the second-story story.

Those people who would be most affected by an upper-floor business ban in Carmel are the second-story tenants. In separate interviews last week, three of them offered the Pine Cone their views on the proposed ordinance.

A long-time upper-level resident said she is only concerned about keeping her own apartment.

Carmel's longest-known second-story businessman said upper-level businesses seem okay to him.

And a woman who lives and works in a downtown second-floor location said the council has no business trying to run her business.

"I should have the right to open a business and go broke, if I want to," insisted Mary Lou Linhart, 56, who moved here in 1974. For almost two years she has operated The Merry Loom, a weaving shop located above the Corner Cupboard Gift Shop on Dolores and Ocean.

"People should be free to choose what they want to do in a business zone," she added. Mrs. Linhart lives in a one-bedroom apartment adjacent to her second-level store. She likes both the business and apartment, but contends one should not be outlawed for the sake of the other.

KINJI HOUSE immigrated to America from Japan 24 years ago. In 1959, the 46-year-old merchant opened a small second-story import shop on Dolores and Ocean, above a real estate office.

The shop has survived.

Where most second-floor retail businesses disappear in a year or less, Kinji's Oriental Shop has stood the test of time. There's a good reason, says House:

"I've never hired an employee."

His wife helps now and then. But House has never paid a dime to an employee. By saving that expense, he says he can continue to make a modest profit.

He has remained upstairs primarily because of the low rent. "I'm afraid to move downstairs. Have you seen the prices? How could I afford it?" he asks.

How does he react to second-floor conversions?

"Places that are apartments now should be left as apartments ... it's hard to say, but new buildings should be all right for second-story businesses," he said.

A 70-YEAR-OLD second-story apartment dweller said she appreciates the council's efforts.

"No business is going to take over my apartment ... at least, not while I'm around," said Mrs. Frances Johnson, whose apartment on San Carlos and Ocean is adjacent to the Pine Cone offices.

"It's very convenient here. When I step outside I'm downtown," she explained.

"When I go they can do what they want with my place ... I expect they'll convert it to a business. But right now I'm very happy here. I just hope they leave me alone," said Mrs. Johnson.

MRS. LINHART, the weaver, says the council has the right idea, but is taking the wrong actions.

"The council's motives are probably good, but I don't think they're dealing in today's world with today's realities. If you're talking about second floors as places for little old ladies in tennis shoes, that's crazy. They can't make it up the stairs," she said.

She has recently submitted plans, along with her brother, to replace the Piccadilly Nursery on Dolores near Ocean with a six-shop complex. They considered adding apartments on top, but decided that no one could afford the rents they would have to charge.

She admits her second-floor business has problems attracting much foot traffic. "Most people just don't bother looking upstairs," she said.

House, the import store owner, says the success of any second-story business depends on its location. "I have a very good location," he added.

MRS. JOHNSON has lived in her two-bedroom apartment for 11 years. "Second-floor locations are great for people who are living alone," she said, "but they are not good for families, because you have to worry about children climbing down the steps."

She sees no disadvantages to living on a second floor next to a business. "The noise doesn't bother me at all," she said. During the evening, when the Pine Cone offices close, she said "it's quieter than if I lived next to another apartment."

She has no lease. Her future in the apartment is uncertain. But Mrs. Johnson said her landlord has never asked her to move out.

"I'm not the worrying type," she said. "I'll face that time if and when it comes."

tainment with guitar music in the past.

"When it happens it's spontaneous and we never play for very long because the restaurant is so small," said co-owner Walter Georis. He is also a part-owner of the Casanova restaurant at Fifth and Mission. Georis would like occasional unamplified guitar music there, too.

"Music is a part of most people's lives. I don't want music to increase business. It's not a gimmick to draw people in. But wouldn't it be nice on a sunny afternoon to have a trio of classic musicians out on the patio?" he posed.

Georis says he opposes rowdy music of any sort here. "I wouldn't want San Jose bikers roaring down Ocean Avenue looking for a disco," he said.

ALL SIX restaurant owners interviewed stated strong opposition to loud music.

"I'd support unamplified music, but that's where my support would stop," said Ed Johnson, an owner of the Fabulous Toots Lagoon on Dolores Street. Johnson said he is often forced to send customers to Monterey when they request live music.

"I'd love to have a classic guitarist for a Sunday afternoon affair. That is what Carmel is all about. That is the real village

'The city does not want to let live entertainment get out of hand' character," commented Bud Allen, owner of La Playa Hotel.

But La Playa and other Carmel establishments have discovered a legal way to provide music and alcohol together.

It's called a private party.

"The law does not prohibit music at clubs or at private parties," according to Bremer.

Allen said he has had four-piece bands play at wedding receptions in his hotel. Similar musical entertainment has also happened at the Pine Inn.

But such events are exceptions.

MEANWHILE, Carmel guitarists have to go outside the city limits to find work.

"I've hammered my head up against that law several times," said Terrence Farrell, a Carmel classic guitarist who has performed in England, France and Germany. Farrell also performed recently at an anniversary celebration for former President Gerald Ford and his wife, Betty.

"It would be a guitarists' paradise around here. The small restaurants are perfect," he commented. Farrell, however, said he sympathizes with the motives behind the ordinance.

So does City Administrator Jack Collins. "The community has never wanted Carmel to be an entertainment center. The folks want quiet evenings. They want the town to close up early," Collins said.

Councilman Mike Brown loves music, but not so much that he would support an ordinance change. Brown is a long-time supporter of the Carmel Bach Festival. After the council recently granted support to Dideann, Carmel's new literary quarterly, Brown commented, "Now it's time we do something for the musicians."

"Any law should be open for review ... but this one seems to have worked rather well," Brown commented.

"The city does not want to let live entertainment get out of hand. Look at the Mission Ranch ... I would not be receptive to loud or rock music," Brown said.

NORBERG IS the staunchest backer of the ordinance.

"We have 72 restaurants in this tiny village. If we don't have control over them, they blossom out in all sorts of curious ways," Norberg said.

But the most curious thing of all, says Miss Mistretta, is the Carmel law that keeps her from making her living here.

"This is supposed to be an arts community, but as an artist-musician, the law says I'm not allowed to work here."

Teacher layoffs, program cuts loom:

Carmel schools must slash another $600,000 from budget

By KEN PETERSON

THE CARMEL Unified School District, which carved more than $1 million from district programs last year to balance the budget, faces more than $600,000 in budget cuts in 1979-80.

That was the discouraging news presented by District Superintendent Carl Wilsey to the board of trustees a week ago Tuesday. He told the board the cuts will require the first significant layoff of district teachers, in addition to program cuts.

The district is under additional pressure this year to decide where cuts will be made because it must notify teachers by March 15 if their contracts will not be renewed for the coming year.

Wilsey said he plans several budget sessions with the school trustees before the cutoff date.

He told trustees he expects local property taxes and state assistance to bring $5,636,740 in income to the district in 1979-80. Using reserve funds from this year would give the district $5,905,121 to spend.

If the district were to spend no more money next year than it has during the current year—a total of $5,980,411—it would finish with a $75,290 budget deficit, he said.

But the district can anticipate additional expenses that will require $616,810 in staff and program cuts, he added.

Those expenses include $247,290 for a 6 percent salary and benefits increase for all employees; $57,235 for normal merit increases in pay; $75,290 to make up the deficit; and $233,995 to set aside as a reserve fund of 4 percent of the total budget.

The extra money would have to be made up by cutting other items in the current budget.

The buying power of that money already has been eroded by a 9 percent inflation rate in 1978 and would be undercut further by the projected 8 percent inflation rate for 1979.

Carmel trustees were, to say the least, dismayed by the budget presentation.

"Well, that's real depressing," said Trustee Frances Gaver.

"It's not a very pretty picture," admitted Wilsey.

"WE WERE ABLE to squeeze by this year and maintain the same basic K-12 program primarily because we used some reserves and the employees got no raises. Next year, we won't have the reserves and I'm not sure we can get by with no (salary) increases," Wilsey commented.

He said the proposed 6 percent pay hike penciled into the budget is based on the percentage increase suggested by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. for state employees in his budget.

Carmel school employees were denied raises last year because state "bail-out" funds used to offset lost property tax money were available only to agencies which did not grant pay hikes. Locally, the city of Carmel and the Carmel Sanitary District refused state aid, choosing instead to give their workers raises.

Wilsey said some teacher layoffs are probable, particularly since the Carmel district can anticipate a further decline in enrollment.

He projects attendance of 3,244 pupils per day next year, compared to 3,316 per day this year.

Wilsey told the Pine Cone that firing temporary employees and the normal pattern of teachers taking leaves of absence should result in 14 fewer teachers next year.

He would not speculate on how many layoffs would be needed as part of a package of cuts totaling $616,000.

WILSEY SAID the trustees are unlikely to re-create the community budget review panel formed last summer to suggest cuts in the wake of the passage of Prop. 13. Instead, parents on the district advisory committee and individual school site councils will participate in budget review, he said.

The trustees also will rely on cuts recommended but not made last summer in deciding where to pare the budget this spring, he added.

One of the major parent proposals was the elimination of the $36,000-a-year post of assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction. The slot was vacated last summer following the resignation of Robert Whitehead and was filled last fall by William Rand, a former Minnesota high school principal.

Wilsey said he still considers the position an important one for the district to retain. Rand, he added, has a contract with the district through 1981, so the question of eliminating his job is moot until that time.

Despite parent opposition, the district trustees unanimously supported retention of the post during budget sessions last year.

The board made up just over $1 million in budget cuts last year by taking $440,000 out of reserves; eliminating summer school; cutting back Adult School offerings and putting most of these classes on a pay-as-you-go basis; reducing the community services budget; and cutting some staff positions and a number of program budgets to arrive at the final figure.

Park District very interested in 677 acres for $100,000

The green light to prepare a sales agreement with the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District to transfer 677 acres in Carmel Valley to the district will be given to the Condon family, owners of the land, on Feb. 8.

District manager Gary Tate said the board of directors expressed great interest in the latest offer by the Condon family to sell the land in Garzas Canyon when it met to consider the proposal at a luncheon study session on Jan. 19.

The board will make its formal reply to the proposal when it meets Thursday, Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Seaside City Hall, 440 Harcourt Ave.

The Condons wish to sell the canyon land and redwood groves in Garzas Canyon to the park district for $100,000, retain 50 undeveloped acres and subdivide another 62 acres into 31 homesites.

Sale of the land to the district for public park use would be based upon approval of the subdivision.

The Garzas Canyon land is adjacent and to the east of Garland Ranch Regional Park, a 540-acre preserve, and the 1,200-acre open space and trails easement granted to the district by developers of the Carmel Valley Ranch.

Park district directors were concerned about the fate of the undeveloped 50 acres around Dorothea Veder Condon's house and wanted to know the exact location of the land in relation relative to the property which would become part of the park. They also requested an appraisal of the fair market value of the land to be purchased, and wanted to know if there would be trail access to Garzas Canyon from the Garland Park mesa.

District directors OK preparation of Condon property sales agreement

The directors planned a field trip to the property some time this week before their Feb. 8 meeting.

The proposed acquisition will have in-concept support from the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association despite a request from two CVPOA board members to make that support conditional on no development being allowed on the 50-acre parcel around Mrs. Condon's house.

The directors on Jan. 17 reaffirmed a statement made last summer, saying they would support the purchase and recognize that some development on other parts of the land will be necessary to make the deal practical.

CVPOA directors Mary Ann Matthews and Earl Moser pressed for a further condition that the 50-acre parcel not be subdivided in the future but were outvoted. Director Robert Marble said the added condition would present a hardship to the Condons, who are making a sincere attempt to place a large block of land in public ownership.

Marble said too many restrictive conditions could hinder the deal and discourage other landowners in similar circumstances from offering their land to public agencies.

Golf lexicon for Crosby watchers

If you're heading out to Pebble Beach this weekend to catch a round or more of the 38th Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Championship and golf sounds like Greek to you, here are some of the commonly used terms of the game:

- Ace: a hole in one.
- Awful: the ball farthest from the hole, which will be the next to be played.
- Best-ball: commonly used for a four-ball match, when two partners use only the better of their scores on each hole.
- Birdie: one stroke under par for a hole.
- Blast: to explode a shot out of a sand trap.
- Bogie: one stroke above par for a hole.
- Bunker: a sand trap, a depression forming a hazard for the player.
- Divot: clump of sod cut away by a golf club.
- Down: the number of holes a player or partners are behind their opponent. The opposite is "up," or holes ahead.
- Eagle: two strokes under par.
- Fore: a warning cry to any who might be in range of a ball being played.
- Gross score: score before handicap is deducted.
- Hole out: finish putting.
- Honor: the privilege of playing first, which goes to the low score on the preceding hole.
- Lie: the position of the golf ball on the ground.
- Lip: the edge of the cup on the greens into which the ball must be stroked.
- Medal play: also called stroke play, is competition in which the total score determines the winners. The Crosby uses this scoring method.
- Net: score after deducting handicap.
- Rainmaker or sky: a ball shot high with little forward distance.
- Scratch player: golfer with a zero handicap.

PATRONS CAN NOW pedal to Carmel's Harrison Memorial Library. This bike rack has been placed just west of the library's entrance. The rack, which holds eight bicycles, was installed to keep bikes away from the library's front steps, according to

Librarian Jo Childers. The rack is already being used by several dozen patrons a day, Mrs. Childers said. (Kirk McClelland photo)

Which comes first? Textbooks or curriculum?

CARMEL SCHOOL DISTRICT trustees approved new science textbooks for middle school last month, but not before Trustee Elizabeth Bell complained that the board was ignoring its own policies in doing so.

The science text series, which will be the standard classroom book for the next six years, was recommended to the board by a committee of teachers, parents and administrators from Middle School. It was accepted by the board on a 4-1 vote.

Mrs. Bell argued that the board should first decide what Middle School students are expected to learn in their science courses, and at what point during their three years at Middle School they should learn it, before approving the textbooks to achieve those goals.

School Principal Bob Hufford said the staff would prepare that information using the textbooks as a basis.

Trustee Richard Wilsdon said it is not the board's function to scrutinize and select textbooks.

Mrs. Bell agreed, adding that curriculum is a matter of board concern. She said it should not be arrived at by default because of the textbooks selected for classroom use. She voted against approving the books because of the process by which they were selected without discussing the merits of the textbooks picked by the committee.

Assistant Superintendent William Rand said the textbook selection committee worked within the guidelines of existing curriculum policies and consulted with high school and elementary school faculty about the choices.

He added that the Middle School curriculum emphasizes a broad range of skills which will be refined by the texts selected. But, he said, if the curriculum is too narrow it might be difficult to find a compatible textbook.

IN A SEPARATE action, the trustees unanimously approved a policy calling for an average class size of between 15 and 26 pupils per teacher and a maximum of 37 students per class unless the superintendent approves a greater number.

In other businesses, the trustees:

- Approved a new pay schedule for substitute teachers ranging from $28.36 per day up to $60.43 per day for a substitute who works more than 40 consecutive days on the same assignment.
- Heard a report on Bay School, where 74 students are now enrolled in morning and afternoon co-op nursery school or in an extended day supervision program for elementary school pupils.
- Learned from Community Services Director Dan Yurkovich that the district is offering more than 50 classes with a minimum of 15 students each through its Adult School although such classes are now on a pay-as-you-go basis. Exceptions are classes the district is required to offer.
- Approved a federal grant application of $28,000 for the district to study different approaches to vocational education in rural areas in order to find methods which could work in the Carmel district.

FIGHTING CHAIRMEN of the 1979 Tri-County Campaign for the American Heart Association gear up for February, designated American Heart Month. Judson Stull (left), is overall campaign chairman; Robert Giraudo is the newly named Carmel City chairman.

Giraudo to head residential unit for Heart Fund Drive

Robert Giraudo of Carmel has been named the Residential Carmel City Chairman of the 1979 Campaign for the Central Mission Trails Chapter of the American Heart Association. The announcement was made today by Judson Stull, overall campaign chairman for the fund-raising drive.

Giraudo, assistant vice president of the Monterey Savings and Loan office in Carmel, will coordinate volunteer efforts there. Approximately 125 volunteers in Carmel will distribute information and collect contributions to support the work of the Heart Association.

February is designated American Heart Month and culminates on Heart Sunday, Feb. 25.

"We're fighting to reduce premature death and disability from heart and blood vessel disease—including heart attack and stroke," said Giraudo.

He added, "Our campaign slogan, 'We're Fighting For Your Life' helps to tell the story of what we're all about."

The tri-county goal for this year's fund-raising drive is $145,000.

College offers 16 new courses for seniors at different locations

Older adults and other residents of the Monterey Peninsula may select from 16 different courses this spring through Monterey Peninsula College Learning Is Living program.

The courses range from an exploration of local history to making home repairs and examining American musicals. They will be given at locations in Seaside, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel, according to Dr. Bea Siegel, director of MPC older adult programs.

A registration fee of $7 per semester covers all Learning Is Living courses. Most begin the week of Jan. 29. Registration may be made at the first class session, said Dr. Siegel.

Seven of the Learning Is Living courses will be given in Monterey: Exploring Local History is a new, eight-week course that is part of the Senior Center Humanities program. Materials for it were developed especially for senior center discussion groups and the readings are supplied by the National Council on Aging which, with the National Endowment for the Humanities, is co-sponsoring the program.

Novella Nicholson will conduct this class on Tuesdays from 1-3 p.m. at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center, Lighthouse and Dickman avenues. Local historical sites will be visited.

Also at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center will be The Golden Age of the American Musical (1940s and 1950s), an exploration of Broadway musical shows through recordings and films. The class meets Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon under the leadership of Jedediah Horner, who has spent many years on Broadway and in Hollywood as a director, producer and actor.

The Monterey Public Library will be the site for Law for the Layman, legal topics of special interest to older adults. Assistant City Attorney Dennis Crabb will conduct the course Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon. It will run 10 weeks, beginning Feb. 3.

Also at the library will be Creative Caring: Life With an Aging Person, an eight-week course to be presented by Wayne Lavengood on Tuesdays from 7-9 p.m. The course begins Jan. 30.

Exploring Our Universe, an overview of astronomy, its relation to other disciplines and speculation about the beyond, is one of three classes on the MPC campus. Hazel Ross is the instructor. The class meets Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon in room 6 of the business building (B-6).

Amateur repairmen will learn how to do things correctly in Fixing-It: Home Repairs for the Novice, a Saturday morning class that Luis Perez will conduct in room 102 of the electronics building (EL-102) from 9 a.m. to noon.

The popular Knowledge Update, a free lecture series providing current knowledge in a variety of fields, resumes with the spring semester. It is given Fridays from 1:30-3 p.m. in room 3 of the engineering building (E-3) on the MPC campus.

In Seaside, a course in creative writing will be conducted by Lee Brady on Thursdays from 1-4 p.m. at the Seaside Public Library, 550 Harcourt St. The classes will deal with Creative Expression Through Prose and Poetry.

Six courses are planned for Pacific Grove, three of them at the Senior Citizens Club at 19th and Jewell. They include the Living World of the Monterey Coast conducted by Jud Vandevere on Tuesdays from 9:30-11:30 a.m. The class will explore intertidal and other animal and plant life through class and field study. There will be an introductory field trip on Saturday, Jan. 27 to take advantage of the lowest tide of the year (minus 1.5). Participants should meet at Pelican statue on the Monterey wharf.

Offered Mondays at the Senior Citizens Club are Basic Skills for Handwork Projects—knitting, sewing, crocheting and embroidery. Camille Arsenaault is the instructor. The class meets from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Conversational Italian I will be taught by Stanley Fabian on Tuesdays from 1:30-3 p.m. at the club. The course not only will cover the language used in daily life but will deal with Italian culture and customs.

Grant Voth, who coordinates the MPC interdisciplinary humanities studies program, Gentrain, on the MPC campus, will bring a Gentrain Sampler to Can-

Schools to get free space use at Sunset Center

The Carmel school district board of trustees at its Jan. 23 meeting approved a rent-free contract with Carmel for use of classroom and auditorium space at Sunset Center.

The district agreed to be responsible for routine cleaning, painting and minor maintenance of three classrooms at the cultural center at San Carlos and Ninth.

The district also may use Sunset Theater a maximum of 10 school days per year rent free, and must pay only the actual costs to the city for custodial services, a stage manager and other personnel required when the facility is open.

The classrooms—rooms 16 and 17 and the pottery workshop—are used for Adult School classes. Sunset Theater may be used for stage shows, dance productions, and other performances, according to high school Principal Dan Stevenson.

In addition to maintenance costs, the district must also pick up the tab for utilities used in the classrooms and auditorium.

The Carmel City Council has already approved the agreement. The present contract will end on June 30 but can be renewed on a year-to-year basis by mutual consent of the district and the city.

Council extends ban on upper-floor conversions

A BAN ON conversion of Carmel business district apartments to commercial use was voted an eight-month extension Monday by the City Council.

The moratorium on apartment conversions, which went into immediate effect, will last until September and can then be extended again for one year.

Purpose of the moratorium is to stop businesses from replacing apartments in the downtown area. The problem has been most noticeable in the disappearance of second-story apartments above commercial firms.

The 5-0 council vote reinforced its position to protect tenants who live above downtown shops.

The council's action did not constitute adoption of an ordinance.

"We're not adopting an ordinance that establishes a law," said Councilman Leslie Gross. "We're only holding it in abeyance until we get material from the Carmel Planning Commission."

An ordinance to ban conversion of apartments above downtown shops is being studied by the planning commission. This ordinance would not be retroactive; therefore, it would not affect prior apartment conversions.

So far, the planning commission, which has met twice on the issue, has been unable to agree on the restrictions of the ordinance.

AT MONDAY'S SPECIAL City Council

session, Jack Wagner, a 10-year resident and businessman, told councilmen they were "making a mountain out of a molehill."

"If the council is genuinely interested in providing housing ... I don't know why you don't provide for the installation of additional second kitchens," he said.

He was referring to the ban on second kitchen units in Carmel. A second kitchen is defined as the installation of small cooking units inside guesthouses or upper rooms of homes. They are, for the most part, illegal in Carmel.

The issue of whether to lift the ban on second kitchens within city limits is slated for action by the planning commission next month. Members of the commission are pushing to legalize these kitchen units.

The extended eight-month moratorium on apartment conversions could be made permanent if an ordinance is recommended by the planning commission and approved by the council, City Attorney George Brehmer said.

CARMEL MAYOR GUNNAR Norberg said he was disturbed by two recent examples of apartment conversions.

Norberg said a woman he knew living in a second-story apartment on San Carlos and Fifth was recently evicted in favor of a new business without being given the option to renew her lease.

Also, apartments above Nielsen's Grocery on Dolores near Eighth were recently converted into office space, Norberg said.

"We have tried to make the point that this is basically a residential community,"

Norberg: 'We have tried to make the point that this is basically a residential community'

Norberg said, repeating the promise that swept him and a council majority into office last March.

Councilman Mike Brown backed Norberg's stand. He moved for an extension of the apartment conversion moratorium. "The commission needs more time. It only makes sense since we're coming into the home stretch," he said.

'Learning is Living' program for seniors terbury Woods, 651 Sinex Ave. The course offers a unique look at the history, philosophy, literature and art of Western civilization. It will be given Fridays from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Also at Canterbury Woods is Raylyn Moore's course in creative writing which continues on Tuesdays from 2-5 p.m. Janet Butler will give a course in body movement, keeping fit through movement to music, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1:30-2:30 p.m. at Forest Hill Manor, 551 Gibson.

All of the courses in Carmel will meet at the Carmel Foundation, Eighth and Lincoln. Scheduled for Mondays from 9:30-11:30 a.m. is Ideas That Shaped Men's Minds. It will be led by Elayne Fitzpatrick-Grimm and will examine the literature that shaped and shook attitudes in the Western world, from Homer to Henry Miller.

George Short and H. G. McFeely will offer Elements of Photography, a survey class in photographing, developing and printing. The laboratory portion of the class will be held from 1-5 p.m. Mondays and the lecture portion from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Thursdays.

Personal Philosophy: Perspective on Living will examine readings by well-known philosophers and how these relate to self. The course will be given by Jean-Michel Terdjmen on Wednesdays from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

The popular Reader's Theatre of Carmel continues on Thursdays from 9:30-11:30 a.m., under the direction of Lee Brady. Participants read selected works of prose, drama and poetry, leading to performance.

Janet Butler's body movement class is given at the Carmel Foundation on Tuesdays from 9:30-10:30 a.m. and the Living World of the Monterey Coast is offered Fridays from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Additionally, certain Learning Is Living courses are offered from time to time in various convalescent homes on the Peninsula. Information on these, and on any of the college's programs for older adults, is available by calling Dr. Siegel at 649-1150, ext. 451.

Also scheduled for the spring and of particular interest to older adults, she noted, are a holistic health workshop in February and a trip to the Mother Lode gold country in April. These will be offered through the college Community Services office.

Dr. Hector Prester, Louise Trygstad, R.N., and William Fryback, Ph.D., will be the featured speakers at a Holistic Health Workshop on Saturday, Feb. 17. They will discuss the holistic view of health, acupuncture, management of pain, the role of stress in illness and the uses of biofeedback. The registration fee is $10, if the workshop is taken for non-credit and $18 if taken for credit.

Robert Johnson will lead a tour to the Mother Lode gold country on Friday and Saturday, April 6 and 7. The tour includes an overnight stop at historic St. George Hotel in Volcano. The $85 fee covers bus, hotel, four meals, admissions, maps, etc.

By JAY POSNER

ALTHOUGH THE PADRES played two of their worst games of the year last week, Carmel High managed to win one by defeating North County High last Tuesday 39-30. The Padres were also demolished by Robert Louis Stevenson School, 66-41, last Friday.

The Padres, now 3-5 in the Mission Trail Athletic League and 5-15 overall (not including Tuesday's game at King City), will now host Hollister High tomorrow night at 8 p.m. The preliminary games begin at 3:30.

Hollister is also 3-5 in MTAL play, and the Hay Balers edged Carmel 60-58 Jan. 12 in Hollister. In that game, Carmel's John Lucido scored a career-high 35 points before fouling out with three minutes left. Dennis Slipsager and Guy Scarlett paced the Balers with 23 and 12 points, respectively, in the Hollister victory.

Last Tuesday before a small crowd in the Carmel gym (because of final exams), the Padres rallied for a 39-30 win. Carmel trailed 14-6 with 7:00 left in the second quarter, before rallying to take a 21-20 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Padres' two leading scorers, Lucido and junior Art Strum, scored six points each to pull out the game that never should have been as close as it was.

Strum scored 15 points and Lucido added 11, but the main reason Carmel was able to win is that the Condors, with no seniors on their team, are not yet ready to compete with the rest of the league.

In a game played last Friday before an overflow crowd at the Padre gym, Carmel opened up a 4-0 lead in the first minute of play before the Pirates ran off 16 straight points in the next eight minutes.

Paced by Tony Woods, who worked his magic for 20 points, the Pirates opened up an amazing 40-10 halftime lead. Woods scored 14 points in the first half and sophomore Dave Drummond added nine, most of them on offensive rebound baskets.

Even though they trailed by as many as 32 points in the third quarter, the Padres never quit. Lucido scored 12 and Strum tallied eight in the second half as the Padres proved that, although they are only an average team, they still have a lot of class.

Sophomore Greg Raynes and senior Steve Hall also played well, scoring five and four points, respectively, and showing good hustle on defense.

Besides Woods, who might be the best player on the Peninsula, the Pirates, who are 8-0 in MTAL play and ranked 11th in the Central Coast Section, received 12 points from Ezra Burdix and 11 from Drummond.

IN GIRLS' BASKETBALL, the Padres raised their record to 7-1 last week with two easy victories. Carmel destroyed North County 51-17 and whipped RLS 52-18.

Sarah Thamer tallied 29 points in the two contests to pace the Padre attack, while Tracy Hydorn scored 20 and Dana Hunter added 15.

The two Carmel wins kept them one game behind Pacific Grove in the MTAL. The Padres, ranked seventh in the CCS, will host Pacific Grove in the final game of the regular season on Feb. 16.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS resident WyMBERley Coerr has been elected to the executive committee of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club for a three-year term.

He will join newly elected committee members Dave Bockman, Betty Hughes and incumbents Rudd Crawford, Janie Figen and Larry Lapidus.

Rod Holmgren of Carmel and Nancy Hopkins of Carmel Valley are retiring from the executive committee.

LAMBERT IS STUDENT ALTERNATE ON SCHOOL BOARD

Keith Lambert, a junior at Carmel High School, has been named as student alternate to the Carmel Unified School District board of directors. Lambert will fill in for Bob Aronson in the non-voting board seat when Aronson cannot attend a board meeting. He is the son of Carmel real estate agent Lillie Lambert.

MUSIC TEACHER NAMED

Ellen Colford of Watsonville has been hired to teach music at Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School this spring, filling in for Tina Paradiso, who has taken a leave of absence. She has taught elementary school music in Connecticut and Seoul, Korea and has been a singer with the Norman Luboff Choir and the Fred Waring Blendors.

CROSBY FUND GIVES $1,500 TO SWIM TEAM

FOR THE THIRD year in a row, the Bing Crosby Youth Fund has contributed $1,500 to be used for the purchase of equipment and supplies by the Barracuda Swim and Diving Team. The team operates a competitive summer program in cooperation with the Carmel school district, using pools at Carmel High School and the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

DONATIONS GO TO SCHOOL PROGRAMS

THE CARMEL Unified School District has received $500 in donations from organizations and private citizens to support educational programs in the local schools.

The Carmel and Carmel Valley Rotary Clubs have contributed $200 each to support the Carmel school district nursery school program that helps Spanish-speaking children learn English. The funds also will help pay the tuition of the children's parents to attend the Carmel Adult School class in English for the Foreign Speaking.

Carmel Valley residents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lee, have donated $100 to the Carmel school district to be used by the Carmel High School choir.

OAKLAND WELCOMES WESTON EXHIBIT

Edward Weston's Gifts to His Sister, an exhibition of more than 100 prints that the famous photographer sent to his older sister May throughout her life, will open Saturday, Feb. 10, in the Oakland Museum's Great Hall Low Bay.

Renowned for his direct approach to photography using a technique that transformed everyday objects into compositions of beauty, Weston opened his first studio in 1911. He sent prints from nearly every one of his photographic projects to his sister who had raised him after their mother died and with whom he maintained a close relationship until her death in 1952.

The museum is at 1000 Oak St., Oakland. For more information, phone (415) 273-3005.

School bus driver sues for religious job discrimination

A FORMER CARMEL school district bus driver who claims he was fired for religious reasons has taken the district to federal court to get his job back.

Charles Pina of Monterey, who signed a letter of resignation in November 1974, is also asking for back pay and benefits which could amount to $125,000 for the Carmel Unified School District, according to his attorney, who made the case public last week.

Pina, a Seventh Day Adventist, is represented by Carmel attorney Ann Hill of Heisler, Stewart and Daniels. The law firm is handling the case for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The suit was filed last June after efforts to reach an out-of-court agreement with the district failed. Negotiations to settle the dispute had been underway since the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) ruled in 1977 that there was "reasonable cause" to believe Pina's charges were true.

Pina claims he was pressured into signing a letter of resignation in November 1974 when he refused to drive the Tulareitos School-Cachagua route past sundown for the third consecutive Friday that month.

As a Seventh Day Adventist, Pina is not permitted to work because of his religious beliefs once the Sabbath begins at sundown Friday.

THE DISTRICT had accommodated his religious beliefs in 1972, his suit claims, and the extension of daylight savings time in 1973 made special arrangements unnecessary.

According to Miss Hill, Pina offered for three years in a row to resign his job if his religious beliefs posed a problem to the district. Each time, he was assured they did not, she said.

Driving Friday evenings was needed only 10 or 12 times a year during the winter months when the days were shorter, Miss Hill said. And the district had hired a substitute driver to substitute for Pina.

Pina had even returned all his overtime pay to the district to offset the cost of bringing in another driver, according to his suit.

The district claimed at the EEOC hearing that it had worked with Pina, a district employee since 1967, by excusing him from Friday night and Saturday athletic and field trips. It also changed the route he drove so he would finish earlier in the day on Fridays and had unsuccessfully tried to persuade two other drivers to change routes with Pina so he would not finish work so close to sundown.

On Pina's last day of work, when he told driver supervisor Ed Goodrick he would not be able to complete the Friday run, he was offered two letters to sign: one stating he would work on Fridays whenever necessary, the other offering his resignation because he could not violate his religious beliefs by driving after sundown.

Pina resigned and Goodrick completed the bus run that day. The district claims there were no substitute drivers available to replace Pina and that taking Goodrick away from repair work on another bus was a hardship for the district.

Hardship is an exception under federal civil rights law which otherwise requires accommodation with the religious beliefs of an employee. The EEOC hearing officer ruled there was no hardship.

Miss Hill said the settlement, if paid by the district, would be for back wages and medical expenses Pina incurred when he lost his district employee's medical insurance and attorney's fees.

INCOMPARABLE BEAUTY: the Pebble Beach Golf Course, shown, is perhaps the most spectacular of the three courses used in the 38th annual Crosby Pro-Am Golf Championship. Play rotates from Pebble to Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point but concludes Sunday, Feb. 4 on "the Old Finisher," the 18th hole at Pebble Beach.

38th Crosby Pro-Am gets underway

Tom Watson will try for an unprecedented third consecutive win and $54,000 in first prize money in the 38th Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship, Feb. 1-4. But Jack Nicklaus, who has won the golf event three times, won't be in the field this year.

Watson won the glamorous event in 1977 and 1978. Nicklaus wound up in the winner's circle in 1967, 1972 and 1973.

In addition to Watson, one of the largest gatherings of stage, screen, television and sports celebrities in tournament history plus the world's top professional golfers promise to make the 38th Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship a stellar success. Play begins today over the Spyglass Hill, Cypress Point and Pebble Beach golf courses and concludes Sunday, Feb. 4 at "the Old Finisher," the 18th hole at Pebble Beach.

The tournament began with a qualifying Monday and practice rounds Tuesday and Wednesday. A nine-hole exhibition with former President Gerald Ford, Arnold Palmer, Bob Hope, Phil Harris and host Nathaniel Crosby was to be played Wednesday morning.

Hope and Harris are sentimental gallery favorites who used to join tournament founder Bing Crosby in the exhibition match. When Bing died in 1977, Bob Hope promised to return and he is back again this year.

Except for Nicklaus, who will miss his first Crosby since he turned pro, and Gary Player, almost every big name in golf will play. With Nicklaus out of the field, the favorite is Tom Watson.

Watson, the 1978 Golfer of the Year, defeated Ben Crenshaw on the second hole of a sudden death playoff last year. With his second Crosby crown secured, Watson won four other golf championships in 1978 and brought home $362,429 for a PGA tour record.

Nathaniel Crosby, 17-year-old son of the late Bing, is tournament host for the second year since his father's death in 1977. Nathaniel will also compete as an amateur.

A scratch golfer, he is considered very poised and knowledgeable about the game. Nathaniel invites the amateur players and he is especially interested in women golfers. The '79 Crosby will find Bari Brandwynne of Las Vegas back for the second year and Lisa Baxter, "Ms. Golf" of 1978 in Golf Digest magazine, on the links.

First-timers are Telly Savalas of Kojak fame and Peter Falk, who plays cigar-chomping Columbo. Also newcomers to the Crosby are singers Johnny Mathis and Charley Pride.

Crowd-pleasing return players include James Garner, former President Gerald Ford, Jack Lemmon, George C. Scott, Pat Boone, Lawrence Welk, Flip Wilson, Adm. Alan Shepard, Glen Campbell and singer Jim Seals, who is bringing along his partner, Dash Crofts, this year.

Two local golfers—Clint Eastwood and Hank Ketcham of Pebble Beach—join the 168 amateurs, as will Willie Mays and Efrem Zimbalist Jr. Ketcham, who returned to live on the Monterey Peninsula from Europe last year, designed the "Dennis the Menace" Crosby program cover this year.

The Clambake purse of $330,000 puts $300,000 in the pros' pockets with first prize a whopping $54,000.

The tournament is played on all three courses for four days, with 18 holes played each day. Foursomes tee off beginning at 7:15 a.m. and at eight-minute intervals thereafter. There are 168 professionals and 168 amateur partners, paired in foursomes.

The three-way field rotates Thursday, Friday and Saturday over the Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill courses. Players start from the first and 10th tees on all three courses.

On Sunday the 30 low teams and 60 low professionals play Pebble Beach. The Crosby is the only PGA-sponsored tournament in which amateurs play right through to the 18th hole finish on Sunday. Saturday and Sunday play will be broadcast over CBS-TV.

Carmel radio station KRML (1410AM) will provide complete coverage of the Crosby. Live, direct 15-minute reports will be broadcast on the hour from 8 a.m. 5 p.m. from Feb. 1-4.

Sportscaster Johnny Lamb, news director Bob Allen and entertainment editor Yvonne Johnson will interview golfers and celebrities and provide up-to-the-minute scores and special reports. The tournament is medal play with each day's score added to the next for the 72-hole total. The pro-am scores are compiled on a best ball basis, including handicap.

Either partner can pick up at any point. Amateurs must pick up if they are out of the hole. Pros cannot pick up and remain in the pro competition.

Tournament manager Dan Searle heads a committee of more than 400 unpaid volunteers who contribute in excess of 20,000 hours of labor. All tournament proceeds go to charity through the Bing Crosby Youth Fund, which has raised nearly $4 million over the years.

Daily admission is $10. Tickets are available at Macy's, Del Monte Center, Monterey or at Ticketron and Bass outlets. For further information, phone 624-0100.

THE HOST—and a competing amateur—for the 38th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Championship is the late crooner's 17-year-old son, Nathaniel, who took over the tournament last year after his father's death. The star-studded event will be played over the Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point golf courses in Del Monte Forest, Feb. 1-4.

California wines accompany 'Nouvelle Cuisine'

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

MIAMI—In the current hands-across-the-sea with the nouvelle cuisine culinary stars of France, it is gratifying to encounter one of those luminary chefs not zealously chauvinistic. But it happened here. Young Jean-Jacques Jouteux, 32, of the tiny-but-celebrated Les Semaillies of Montmartre in Paris, flew here to prepare a dinner for a lucky group of American wine and food writers, and chose four California wines to accompany its delicate dazzling fare. When asked his reasoning, the answer came without hesitation: "It is an American dinner, with the foods of your markets, and so why not your good wines, too?"

The four-course dinner presented four wines, but this does not give an indication of this artistic demonstration, its scope or raison d'être. It might be best to go to the beginning of how this event happened to take place, here at The Hotel Mutiny at Sailboat Bay on the Coconut Grove Marina.

Owner-host Burton Goldberg, recently in Paris, tracking the trails of la bande Bocuse, those stellar chefs: Bocuse, Troisgros, Verge, Guerard and Chapel, and his lovely Denise were seated on a banquet of yet another of the aspiring fame-seekers via nouvelle cuisine.

Goldberg's disenchantment with the restaurant of that moment was perceived by a solitary young diner next to him, who volunteered, in true believer's excitement, to tell him about Les Semaillies of Jouteux, not too far away in "an untouristy section of Montmartre." Moments later, the three checked in to the lauded restaurant.

After the lunch, Jean-Jacques joined them and the marriage of minds began. Before the first session was concluded, between sips of Champagne, Jouteux' visit to America was arranged. It would bring him to Florida for a spectacular American dinner.

THE AMERICANA DINNER, "in the manner of La Nouvelle Cuisine," presented, in the first three courses, eight recipes, each as tempting to the eye as the palate, Oriental in visual arrangement, unchallenging in the modesty of proportions, free of obvious efforts to be different.

We began with a mousse of smoked white fish encased in lettuce leaf, reposing in a circle of pureed fresh tomatoes, studded with occasional slivers of ripe olive. It was accompanied by the 1976 Chardonnay of Martin Ray Vineyards of Saratoga.

Space precludes listing the whole dinner, but the wines are easily accommodated, his selections interesting and appropriate. With the small round pink filet of lamb, Stags' Leap Wine Cellars 1975 Cabernet Sauvignon of Lot 3 by Warren Winiarski. It was as classic as claret with lamb in Pauillac tradition in Bordeaux, and reminiscent of such elegance.

All of us, including Rita Leinwand, food editor of Bon Appetit; Jose Wilson, Jim Beard's colleague; Bernie O'Brien, of Scripps-Howard papers in Hollywood, Fla.; Sam Aaron of New York, found this one of the evening's highlights.

FIVE DESSERTS, though of small portions, sherbets of melon, kiwi and strawberry, a chocolate charlotte, apple mousse and "eggs on snow" (floating meringue) gave equal acclaim and applause to the Chateau St. Jean Alexander Valley 1977 Johannisberg Riesling, Individual Bunch-Selected Late Harvest from the Belle Terre Vineyard.

All around the room were audible whispers: "Like a

The Music Corner:

Concert season is previewed

By SCOTT MACCLELLAND

WHEN THERE IS a dry weekend during the season of torrential music on the Peninsula, be assured that it is only the calm before the storm.

Hidden Valley's orchestra concert on Feb. 4 at Sunset is no less than a cloudburst. The "Mozart Mini-Festival" is really two concerts in a row. The program's proportions resemble some of those monster-concerts that Beethoven put on in Vienna in the early 1800s.

Not only will you be able to take in Mozart from 2:30 p.m. until about 6:30, but you will also get another chance to hear the exciting Boris Bloch, who dazzled this town in Beethoven's Emperor Concerto with the Monterey County Symphony at the beginning of this season.

Bloch will be joined by another prize-winning pianist, Douglas Montgomery. Joel Ethan Fried will conduct the opera orchestra, and all of it will help restore Hidden Valley's coffers.

The first concert, starting at 2:30, will include the Idomeneo Overture, the Piano Concerto No. 20 in d minor, and the Symphony No. 41 in C "Jupiter." Bloch will be soloist. The second program starts at 5 p.m. and will have the Symphony No. 1 (Mozart was about 8), the Concerto No. 21 in C with Montgomery, and the Double Piano Concerto in E flat with Bloch and Montgomery.

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA Concert Association will present pianist Pamela Resch in recital on Feb. 9 at Pacific Grove Junior High. She is a California artist whose career has already taken her to Europe and the Orient.

THE CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY has a plum of a concert when Jean-Phillipe Collard appears at Sunset on Feb. 16. While this pianist has not made that many West Coast performances after his first in 1973 at San Francisco, he has made numerous recordings for Connoisseur Society and they have proven that Collard is a major artist.

His playing is very exciting and his program will include Ravel's Valses nobles et sentimentales, Schumann's Symphonic Etudes, L'ile joyeuse by Debussy and the Sonata No. 2 in b minor by Rachmaninoff.

STARTING FEB. 16, Hidden Valley will offer its next installment of Opera Highlights. Five performances will be spread over two weekends.

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Symphony's Steinbeck Memorial concert will be heard at Sunset on Feb. 26. The program is supposed to reflect the dedicatee. Steinbeck liked Dvorak's New World Symphony, so it is scheduled. He liked jazz, so the Gershwin Piano Concerto in F will be played by Paulena Carter. And Aaron Copland's Red Pony was originally a score for a film based on Steinbeck's novel.

It is really an attractive program and Miss Carter is a Gershwin specialist. The importance of that cannot be ignored.

A GLIMPSE INTO MARCH finds Hidden Valley up again, this time with Puccini's comic masterpiece, Gianni Schicchi. Only three performances though, starting on March 2.

ON MARCH 3 the Chamber Music Society will bring the Music from Marlboro ensemble to Sunset. Heard will be the String Quartet in G, Op. 20 by Boccherini, the Oboe Quartet in F, K. 320 by Mozart, and the great Quintet in C, Op. 163 for string quartet and second cello by Schubert.

AND TO ROUND OUT this little reminder, Hidden Valley will open its next opera, Britten's Turn of the Screw, on March 16, for nine performances.

Arts & Leisure

beerenauselese!"—and it was! Rich, sweet, golden with a 13.5 percent residual sugar.

With all that is being written currently about La Nouvelle Cuisine, it was refreshing to find a young disciple who was moving with the restraint of a Japanese haiku, and equal joy in artistry. That was the message, if there was one to find. The excellence of the California wines was a friendly overture.

That the reception wine had been Domaine Chandon Brut from the Napa Valley, produced by the Champagne-master of Moet and Chandon of Epernay, Edmund Maudiere, was, after all, appropriate for this truly hands-across-the-sea culinary embrace from France. It doesn't happen often. It's nice when it does.

Finalists chosen in writing contest

By RICHARD TYLER

THE ARDUOUS TASK of reading and evaluating 195 plays for the Carmel Festival of First Playwriting Competition has been accomplished. Six plays have been chosen to send to the final judges; four are from California, one from New York, and one from Massachusetts.

It is always a tremendous responsibility for the local judges to make their choices for final consideration. We have been fortunate for these past two competitions to have experienced and involved citizens of the Carmel area volunteer the many hours it takes to screen these plays.

Robert Evans has served for two years and his experience and background have given many valued judgments.

This year our new judges are Bill Asp and Mrs. Harriet Shanner.

Everyone who has attended a play on the Peninsula has probably seen a production directed by Bill Asp.

For the past 12 years he has been active in local theater both as an actor and director. He was resident director at Carmel's Studio Theatre for several years and also served on the board of directors for the Community Theater of the Monterey Peninsula. He has directed plays and musicals at the Wharf Theatre and the Cannery Row Dinner Theater.

Mrs. Shanner came to Carmel more than 18 years ago and has attended local productions and worked for and with theatrical presentations for nearly that long.

Prior to living in Carmel, exposure to some first-rate performances by some of the theater's great names made her an avid reader of plays. As a member of the Goodman Theater in Chicago, she attended many performances and remembers the talented commitment of the young performers. All this created a desire to assist theatrical endeavors wherever she has lived.

For many years she worked with the Community Theater of the Monterey Peninsula and was very sad when it ceased to operate. But her interest in the local theatrical activities has not diminished.

Along with her final summation, she submitted her thoughts about the competition, which I am sure she would like to share with all residents of Carmel. Therefore, I am including it with our discussion of the competition:

SPONSORING a contest for new and original plays is a most uncommon experiment for a community to undertake. Most municipalities are too concerned with street sweeping and taxes to reach or stretch beyond ordinary day-to-day living. But, since it is the uncommon and not the common that makes the high points in man's development and the stretching beyond what is expected that makes for exhilaration and inspiration in young lives, we are fortunate to be participating in the contest.

"For 195 plays to have been submitted to this very new endeavor is phenomenal! When you see the dearth of dramatic material presented on television and see program after program in small dinner theaters repeating Private Lives and Oklahoma, you know there is a need for encouragement and development of new material," she writes.

"A number of articles have appeared in the press lately about programs and workshops for the development of new playwrights. Commendable indeed. But before a budding playwright can be a candidate in one of these endeavors, he must have written a play. And how to tell whether a written play is playable without having it performed? What a splendid recommendation it would be for a playwright to be able to say his work had been winner of and performed in Carmel-by-the-Sea's Festival of Firsts Competition.

"The many strange encounter groups and cults which have burgeoned in our society are evidence of the craving people have for direct interaction with their fellow man. A live performance and what it entails for presentation gives people this opportunity. The theaters which were built in all the communities of ancient Greece, the remains of which can still be seen today, attest to the importance of theater in a highly civilized community. So since 'man does not live by bread alone,' let us encourage the continuation of this contest and know that we are participating in a forward-thinking, far-reaching enterprise."

The final judges are now reading the plays and we will announce the winner as soon as they have finished their evaluations.

Who are the final judges? We are very fortunate to have Dame Judith Anderson and Robert Emmett repeat their fine "performance" of last year. Joining them is author, art critic and playwright, Stephen Longstreet.

Longstreet was a radio writer for national networks doing shows for Deems Taylor, Bob Hope, and Rudy Vallee. He was a writer for Duffy's Tavern and associate producer of the NBC series, The Blue and the Gray. He was a film critic for the Saturday Review of Literature, a member of the editorial staff of Time, Screenwriters Magazine, literary critic for Reader's Syndicate, and literary critic for the Los Angeles Daily News.

His honors include the Billboard-Donaldson Gold Medal, 1948, for the best play of the year, High Button Shoes; Gold Medal Gallup Poll Award, 1948, for the most popular film of the year, The Jolson Story; and the California Golden Star, 1949, for Gauguin and The Greatest Show on Earth (screenplay), nominated for an Academy Award in 1952.

He created films for the war department during World War II and was awarded a Citation of Meritorious Service. He is a member of the Dramatists Guild, Writers Guild of America, and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Some of his works include: Decade, The Golden Touch, Geisha, Eagles Where I Walk, and screenplays The Imposter, Duel in the Sun, Stars and Stripes Forever, Houdini, The Helen Morgan Story, Wild Harvest, and Man of Montmartre (based on his own book).

Some sidelights to his career: he had his first exhibition of pencil drawings at the age of four and a watercolor show at eight. He spent the latter half of the 1920s in Europe where he met the artists Utrillo, Suzanne Valadon, Chagall, Matisse, and Picasso and notables of the period Gertrude and Leo Stein, James Joyce, Elliot Paul, and Ernest Hemingway.

THE FESTIVAL OF FIRSTS Playwriting Competition is gaining more national recognition as shown by the recent article that appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle. The caliber of play and performance must be high. Production is at the heart of the theater experience. For theater to become important within the lives of people, productions—whether academic, regional, or commercial—must be of high quality.

Who judges the standards? Who sets the goals? The obvious answer to these questions is the community in which theater thrives.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

Black, who owns the doubling cube at 2, rolls 5-1. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Black is slightly behind in the race and he has two men deep in White's home board that could present a problem. However, there is a lot of play in the position, and there is no need for Black to panic.

There are several ways for Black to play his roll tidily. The most obvious is to bring the man on the White bar to the mid-point (12-point) and to use the 1 to make the Black 2-point. That gives Black a five-point board and leaves no blot. However, that hands over the White outer board to White, who can then bring round men without fear of getting hit. I reject that move because it gives White too much freedom of action, and White should eventually win the game unless he gets unlucky or Black gets very lucky.

Another option is to make the Black 2-point and the White bar-point. That has rather more appeal, since it holds the White men in Black's outer board. The drawback is that White might hit the blot on his 2-point, perhaps even point on it. If Black doesn't enter and hit, he will, in all likelihood, have to break first, and that should result in a won game for White, perhaps even a gammon.

The third possibility is the one that appeals to me most, though at first glance it seems to be the riskiest. I would hit the blot on the Black bar-point with a man from the mid-point. True that leaves two blots—on the mid-point and the 2-point. But Black does have a four-point board, and it is by no means sure that White will re-enter.

If White stays out, Black has an excellent chance of constructing a five-point board. That is also true if White comes in without hitting. In either of those cases, Black's game will have improved dramatically.

Even if White comes in and hits, the game is not over. Black has a point in White's home board that will leave him with play. He might even develop a back game if White hits both blots. The risk seems well worth taking.

SAILOR, ARTIST and new gallery owner George J. Bleich is shown seeking inspiration for his marine paintings aboard the yawl "Pipe Dream." Bleich Gallery

New Bleich Gallery West shows marines, landscapes

Bleich Gallery West is the new name of the former Richard Danskin Gallery on Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue, Carmel. The gallery will show the marine paintings of George J. Bleich and landscapes by Richard Danskin.

A Carmel resident since 1969, Bleich owned galleries in the Court of the Fountains and above the Highlands Inn. The new location will display his paintings of the Carmel-Big Sur coast as well as canvases of the White Mountains of New Hampshire and Gloucester, Mass., where he also maintains studios.

Bleich, a former professional seaman, sails his yawl, Pipe Dream, through the Caribbean and Bahamas; the boat is homeported in Gloucester.

A member of the Salmagundi Art Club of New York City, Bleich has shown his work in Palm Beach, Washington, D.C., and at galleries in Georgia, South Carolina, Texas and Ohio. His marine studies are strongly influenced by the work of Turner. His marine studies are strongly influenced by the work of Turner. painters of the Impressionist School of France.

Ashworth art exhibited here

Watercolors by Marjorie Ashworth will be exhibited Feb. 6-March 2 at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

Her brilliantly colored paintings reveal a deep response to nature, expressed in both delicate realism and bold abstraction.

A graduate of Barnard College and the Sorbonne, Miss Ashworth has painted for more than 40 years. After her formal training, she studied for five years with Benjamin Abramowitz in Washington, D.C., and has exhibited her work since those days. The Carmel exhibit is the first western tour of her paintings.

The artist's exceptionally wide exposure to the arts of the world is felt in her paintings, which draw on the early revolutionary painters of Mexico, the experiments of underground painters in the USSR, the seminal sculptures of West African villages and the influence of the Middle East.

The 30 watercolors in the exhibit are all titled and capture special moments in the artist's life, from a day at the circus to a visit to the Virgin Islands or a conversation with a gypsy.

The exhibition is being shown throughout the U.S. and Canada by Van Arsdale Associates.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays. Admission is free. For further information, phone 624-3996.

Group textile exhibit during Feb. at Sunset

Fibres, a group textile exhibit, will be shown in the Sunset Theater foyer during the month of February. Wall hangings and soft sculptures by Mary Balzer Buskirk, Toni James, Kathe McDonald, Pati Belknap, Elsbeth Ramos and Susan Williams are included.

Mary Buskirk says of her hangings, "I have always been involved with ideas and concepts of landscape for as long as I have been weaving. Recently, however, as the size of my work has expanded, the specific forms from our world have become more insistent. I continue to keep the preliminary sketches for the weaving small and non-specific so the woven pieces can develop in terms of fiber interactions rather than in a naturalistic manner."

Toni James draws strongly from the inspiration of natural materials. She pays special attention to the sensory qualities of her chosen materials and often contrasts these with harsher textures. The scale and strength of her larger works serve as architectural enrichments yet reveal a subtle touch of gentleness.

Kathe McDonald is a fiber sculptor and native Californian who lives on the Monterey Peninsula. She brings to her fiber work a rich and varied background in the fiber arts. An art major at Mt. San Antonio College and the California State College at Los Angeles, she has also taught crafts and served as a social worker.

Patricia Belknap's work reflects a concern to balance the integrity of the fiber with the clarity of the woven statement, often reworking pieces to their essential elements. Explorations in color led her to extensive experiments in vegetal fiber dyeing. Many of her woven pieces incorporate handspun, natural dyed yarns utilizing vegetal matter from the Monterey Peninsula as well as more exotic and ancient dye sources.

Her woven pieces are enriched as they mellow with age. The most satisfying pieces have an almost childlike quality and are often deceptively simple. Her use of color and composition are subtle but upon reflection employ a touch of surprise.

Discussing her background, Susan Williams relates, "I began as a painter and got tired of flat, regulated canvases. Fabric which has been enhanced with color and texture and then quilted and stuffed seems so much more pleasant to me.

"I still 'paint' on the cloth using dye, wax block prints, spray and applique to create the shapes. The shapes become familiar forms of a subjective nature: shells, fish, rocks, etc." Nature, fantasy, and the Jungian concepts of animus and anima are the means used to bring the viewer of this sensual fabric art closer to his own inner reality.

Elsbeth Ramos has made the archetypal and literary images her own in stuffed fabric hangings which are three dimensional and incorporate stitchery, painting, applique and assemblage.

A native of Berkeley, she studied art at the Stoatische Kunstschule in Bremen, West Germany, and at the University of California, Berkeley. She has exhibited in the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas as well as Paris, France. She lives in Monterey.

Pictures of her work have been published in Handmade Toys and Games, Doubleday, 1975; and Hardcore Crafts, Ballentine Books, 1976. She will appear shortly in a new book on creative women in the arts.

The exhibit will be on display during all functions in the Sunset Theater or by contacting the director's office during weekdays at 624-3996.

TOO MANY TAXES TOO LATE

MORE THAN 200 Carmel residents are delinquent on real estate, personal property and sewer taxes for the 1928-'29 fiscal year.

Among the Carmel property owners who owe the city monies are Stephen and Jeanette Reynolds, who must pay $1.39 in back taxes; and Hazel and Marie Flanders who owe a whopping $52.09.

Then there is the Carmel Development Co., owned by Frank Devendorf and others, that is behind in taxes by $7.33.

Delinquent taxpayers are in good company for it seems nearly everyone has forgotten to make their annual payments. Others include Mary Dummage, who owes $14.58 in sewer taxes; Joseph Mora, $66.67 in sewer taxes; and Frances Macomber, who must pay $48.87 for various properties.

According to the office of the city marshal and ex-officio tax collector of Carmel, the delinquent taxes must be paid by Feb. 16 or additional penalties will be leveled against the offending parties.

SUNSET TO BE SEMESTER SCHOOL

The regular school year at Sunset will now be divided into two semesters according to its principal, O. W. Bardarson. Students will now be promoted at the end of the first semester into high or low divisions of the same grade, eliminating the need to demote a child who is unable to keep up with the brighter children.

The students are busy working on the first issue of their school publication, Sunset Glow. The expenses of the monthly paper will be defrayed by advertising and the 5 cents charged for the issue.

ZONING ORDINANCE PASSES FIRST HURDLE

After a midnight session of the City Council Tuesday evening, a zoning ordinance that will exclude all non-essential industries from the community was adopted.

Council members agrees that no planing mills, machine shops (except in garages) or any industry emitting fumes, smoke or gases will be allowed to operate within the city limits.

City Attorney Argyll Campbell said that the ordinance, when formally adopted, will be the only one known to exist in the United States.

Established firms will hold a virtual monopoly under the new law as competition will be shut out. However, the businesses will be unable to expand their premises beyond the existing boundaries. The passage of time will probably see the disappearance of all non-conforming uses. The city will be dependent on Monterey for all products that cannot be purchased at retail and grocery stores.

me flabbergasted. I offer this simple solution: Why not have a day set aside for people to go voluntarily and demand that they be given a loyalty test. A giant parade led by a brass band will lead people chanting the usual ritual, 'I have not nor ever have been, etc.,' suggested Carmel writer Daisy Bostick.

She said that she is angry because she has never been investigated and would be proud to stand up and proclaim her loyalty to anyone interested.

PLANNING BOARD NAMED

The Carmel City Council, at Wednesday night's meeting, approved Mayor Horace Lyon's appointment of architect George Willox and artist Clarence Bates and the reappointment of Mrs. Talbert Josselyn to the planning commission.

Mrs. Josselyn, wife of the writer whose short stories have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers, and many other "slicks," has lived in Carmel for 30 years. She believes that to qualify for the commission, members should "love every tree and stone in Carmel."

PINE CONE CELEBRATES 40TH BIRTHDAY

Wednesday was the Pine Cone's 40th birthday. An editorial written by the newspaper's first editor, Bill Overstreet, is as pertinent today as it was in that first issue published in Carmel's infant years. It said: "You owe it to yourself no less than your village to patronize the home merchant."

"He lives here, pays taxes, contributes generously to various funds both for charity and art, and takes a vast interest in the material progress of the community."

"Spend your money at home where it will do the most good."

COUNCIL OKAYS EDMERE PERMIT

STORM CONDITIONS outside the City Council chambers did not stop angry citizens from storming last night's council session to protest the approval of the EdmERE Cottage expansion permit.

The final vote, 3-1, will allow the motel to expand 290 square feet and rebuild two of its motel units.

Located in a residential zone, homeowners adjacent to the property have expressed disapproval of the permit since the passage of an ordinance regulating motels outside the business district.

Percy Wilson, speaking for the Carmel Citizens' Committee, said, "Today there is widespread feelings that perhaps the only way to stop expansion is to pass an initiative that would eventually phase them out."

Tenor Barry McCauley will appear in recital

TENOR Barry McCauley, who has appeared with the San Francisco Opera for two years, will appear in recital Saturday, Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in the Robert Louis Stevenson School Auditorium, Forest Lake Rd., Pebble Beach. A reception follows the free performance.

Saturday, Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in the Robert Louis Stevenson School Auditorium, Forest Lake Road, Pebble Beach. The performance is free and the public is invited.

McCauley has been artist-in-residence at the private school since Jan. 25. He is a Reader's Digest Affiliate Artist this year and has sung with the San Francisco Opera for the past two seasons, most recently appearing as Cassio in Othello and Rodolfo in La Boheme.

He will be accompanied by pianist Roslyn Frantz. Two RLS students, Albert Jordan and James Potochny, will perform works on guitar and solo violin, respectively.

A reception will follow the recital.

For additional information, phone 624-1257.

at 8 p.m. Sung in English, the robust opera is about an older bachelor in search of love and the mishaps which befall his marriage.

The opera ensemble has set the work in the American South in the 1830s.

Highly acclaimed for its past productions, the Opera Ensemble brings talented young singers from throughout the country to Hidden Valley for a seven-month period of intensive study, rehearsal and performance.

The current production stars Reg Huston as Don Pasquale; William Sharp portrays Dr. Malatesta; Gregory Mercer is the hapless Ernesto; and Susan Roberts is Norina.

Season tickets, which include performances of Don Pasquale, Britten's Turn of the Screw, Bizet's Carmen and a number of "extras" are $30. Regular single-seat admission is $8 and $5 for children 14 and under.

For additional information or reservations, phone 659-3115.

'Mozart Mini-Festival' Sunday

Mozart's first and last symphonies and three of his piano concerti will be performed at the Hidden Valley Opera Orchestra's two-part "Mozart Mini-Festival," Sunday, Feb. 4 in Sunset Theatre, Carmel.

Russian-born pianist Boris Bloch will play the Piano Concerto No. 20 in D Minor, K. 466 in a performance that begins at 2:30 p.m. The program also includes the Overture to Idomeneo, K. 366 and the Symphony No. 41 in C Major, K. 551, the "Jupiter," Mozart's last symphony.

At 5 p.m., pianist Douglas Montgomery will perform the Piano Concerto No. 21 in C Major, K. 467 and the Opera Orchestra will play the Symphony No. 1 in E Flat Major, K. 16 (written when the composer was eight years old).

Both pianists will join in the Concerto for Two Pianos in E Flat Major, K. 365 as the concluding work of the festival.

The Opera Orchestra will be conducted by Joel Ethan Fried, associate conductor for Hidden Valley. Fried, who is 24 years old, has a doctoral degree in opera from the University of Southern California. He conducted the Oakland Symphony last year as a prize winner of the American Conductors' Competition.

Boris Bloch appeared with the Monterey County Symphony last season. He has won numerous piano competitions, including first prize in the Busoni International Piano Competition of Bolzano, Italy, last September.

In 1976, Bloch won the Young Concert Artists International Auditions in New York, and was presented in his highly acclaimed New York debut in the Young Concert Artists Series that November. In April, 1977, he traveled to Israel to participate in the Artur-Rubinstein International Piano Master Competition and was presented with the Silver Medal by Rubinstein himself.

Bloch entered the Special Music School in Odessa, USSR in 1958; at 14, he performed his orchestra debut with the Odessa

Symphony Orchestra.

Bloch went to Europe in 1974 and won top prize in the Liccola Scala Competition in Milan, Italy, and first prize in the International Jaen Competition in Spain in 1975. He was engaged to appear as soloist with the National Orchestra of Belgium for the opening concert of the 1976-77 season, and toured with the San Remo Symphony that season, performing the Tchaikovsky Concerto No. 1.

His credits include numerous recitals in the United States and Europe, appearances as soloist with the New Jersey, Indianapolis, Syracuse and St. Louis Symphonies, and an all-Scriabin program in the 1977 Spoleto/USA Festival.

A native of Chicago, 24-year-old Douglas Montgomery recently won first prize in the prestigious Robert Casadesu International Piano Competition.

He has performed solo recitals in many parts of the country as well as appeared with the Chicago Chamber Orchestra, Kansas City Philharmonic and the Grant Park Symphony in Chicago. A recent recital in Cincinnati was chosen for the new Grand Piano Series and will be broadcast this March over national public radio. He will return to Europe this summer for engagements in France and Italy.

Montgomery received his master's degree from the Juilliard School last spring and is a teaching Fellow there.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for juniors 14 years of age or younger. Proceeds will benefit the Opera Orchestra. They are available at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley, through its regular ticket outlets or may be reserved by phoning 659-3115. A limited number of tickets will be available at the door before the concert.

Boris Bloch to appear

RUSSIAN-BORN pianist Boris Bloch will perform a Mozart piano concerto and join fellow pianist Douglas Montgomery in the composer's "Double Piano Concerto" in the Hidden Valley Opera Orchestra's Mozart Mini-Festival Sunday, Feb. 4 at Sunset Theatre, Carmel.

Peninsula Roundup

A public meeting on school finance will be sponsored by the California Teachers Association, tonight, Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hartnell College gymnasium, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Community residents are urged to attend.

The session, titled Public Education is Our Best Investment, has been scheduled to impress upon the legislators the need for a sound and permanent school finance measure for California.

Assemblyman Henry Mello and Senator Robert P. Nimmo plan to attend; Congressman Leon Panetta will either attend in person or send a representative.

For more information, phone Peggy Johnsen at 649-7413.

The Advertising Club of the Monterey Peninsula will meet today, Feb. 1, at noon at La Playa Hotel, Carmel.

Guest speaker will be Peter J. Yurkovich, president of Eller/Pacific Outdoor Advertising Sales, Inc. He will discuss the history of outdoor advertising.

For further information, phone Marg DiPeso at 649-4050.

Selections from the poetry of Robinson Jeffers will be read by David Hughes and Marcia Hovick at the Feb. 5 meeting of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey Public Library community room, 625 Pacific St., Monterey. The public is welcome.

Will Gahagen, director of the citizen effort to purchase Tor House, will give a biographical sketch of the late poet and a chairside tour of his home on Carmel Point.

Individuals interested in AAUW membership are especially invited. For further details, phone Barbara Woodruff at 899-2822.

Amanda Lawford, owner of Les Nouvelles in the Barnyard, will demonstrate techniques of painting designs on canvas for use in needlework at the regular meeting of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America.

The group will meet Monday, Feb. 5, 9:30-11 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 501 Eldorado St., Monterey. There is no charge to attend the meeting for Guild members; $1 will be asked of non-members.

The Guild's March meeting will include a swap sale of articles used in needlework.

For more information, phone 375-4986 or 624-2250.

A business meeting will be combined with a Valentine's luncheon for members of the Monterey Civic Club, Feb. 6 at the House of the Four Winds in Monterey.

A social hour will precede the 12:15 p.m. luncheon, which will offer a menu taken entirely from the club's recently published cookbook. Luncheon chairman Carol Todd personally tested each recipe and says the food is delicious!

Ted Durein, former executive editor of the Monterey Peninsula Herald, will speak on Old Monterey Was Fun to tie in with the theme of this year's Cascarone Ball.

Members are urged to attend and may bring guests. For further information, phone Margo Toy, 372-5743.

The Monterey Parks and Recreation Dept. will begin the first womens basketball league on the Monterey Peninsula for players 18 years of age or older.

The league will play Tuesday evenings, 7-9 p.m. at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, beginning Feb. 6.

A limited number of team spaces are available. Individuals who would like to play on a team are also invited to pick up roster forms at the Parks and Recreation office; 546 Dutra St., Monterey.

For more information, phone 372-5115.

A six-week class in French cooking begins today, Thursday, Feb. 1, 7-9 p.m. at the Monterey Community Center, 542 Archer St. The class is intended for beginners or cooks with some basic instruction.

Fee, which includes all food, is $25 for Monterey residents and $30 for others.

For registration information, phone 372-8121, ext. 281.

Karate classes for kids 6-12 years of age or adults 13 years and older continue at the Monterey Youth Center, 777 Pearl St., sponsored by the Monterey Parks and Recreation Dept.

The new sessions meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 4:30-5:30 p.m. for the youngsters and 5:30-7 p.m. for adults. Classes resume Feb. 2.

Called an excellent self-defense course for anyone over 5 years of age, the classes cover discipline and self-defense through Japanese Botoku-Kai Karate.

Fees are $20 for Monterey residents, $25 for non-residents for the junior class and $5 more for each session for the adult class.

For additional information, phone 372-5115.

The annual meeting and campaign recognition dinner of the Monterey Peninsula United Way begins with no-host cocktails at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 8 in the Big Sur room of the Hilton Inn, Monterey.

Dinner follows at 7 p.m. Price for the meal is $10. Reservations must be made by Monday, Feb. 5. Phone 372-8026 for further details.

Arts & Leisure

The Monterey College of Law will present a program, How to Start Your Own Law Office, Friday, Feb. 2, at 8 p.m. at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey.

A film produced by the California Young Lawyers Association will be shown; a panel discussion will follow with members of the legal community who have started their own offices. They include Lisa Mendelsohn, John Howell, James Spiering, Ronald Parravano, William Soskin and Donald Condren.

The program is free. Interested law students, attorneys and the public are welcome.

For further information, phone 373-3301 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Parents of asthmatic children and teachers with asthmatic students are encouraged to attend a lecture on Pediatric Asthma presented by the Mission Coast Lung Association. The lecture will be given Wednesday, Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey High School lecture hall, Herriman Drive, Monterey.

The lecture will be followed by a question-and-answer period. There is no charge. For further information, phone the Lung Association at 1-424-1220.

Moliere's 'School for Wives' opens Friday at Forest

The Staff Players, the adult performing company of the Children's Experimental Theatre, will open its first production of the 1978-'79 season, Moliere's School For Wives, Friday, Feb. 2, at the Forest Theater - in - the - Ground, Carmel. The play will also be staged Saturday and Sunday evenings, Feb. 3 and 4. All curtains are at 8:30 p.m.

The works of 16th century French playwright Moliere have long been a specialty of the Staff Players under the direction of Marcia Gambrell Hovick. Their most recent production was The Miser last year; past works include

The Intellectual Ladies, The Dr. In Spite of Himself and The Imaginary Invalid.

School For Wives is a satirical comedy about a foolish man who believes he can create the perfect wife. Alan Coppens plays Arnolph, whose fear of being cuckolded leads him to sequester a young girl in a lonely mansion where he can control her training as his wife.

Agnes, the wife-to-be, is played by Leslie Robinson. She responds to the romantic advances of young Horace, portrayed by Adam Miller, who upsets Arnolph's plans for her education.

Others in the cast include Eben Swift as Chrysalid, Moliere's voice of good sense; Tony Mariano and Nancy Bernhard as the simpleminded servants; Bill Logan, Rex Whitworth and Thomas R. Sanchez.

All productions of the Staff Players benefit the non-profit Children's Experimental Theatre, a 15-year-old drama school for young people.

School For Wives will be performed Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through March 11. The Forest Theatre - in - the - Ground is an intimate playhouse located beneath the outdoor stage of Carmel's historic Forest Theater on Mountain View and Santa Rita.

Tickets are $4.50 for adults, $2.50 for students and seniors Friday and Saturday and $4 and $2, respectively, Sunday evening.

For reservations, phone 624-1531.

WHEN IS A SHOP MORE THAN A SHOP? Answer, when it's an "ecology" shop. When, in the paper bag, along with your purchases, you find some politely ghostly little pamphlets, to be given to fur-wearing ladies, or an "action sheet" to help you write letters about the impending baby seal massacre in Canada... or if you find yourself writing a postcard to Interior Secretary Andrus (the shop mails it for you) about 1080 poison on our public lands... that's ARA-VIC's Ecology Corner, in Carmel Valley.

ALL SAINTS'

Sunday is Theological Education day at All Saints' Church. The Rev. Frederick Borsch, Dean of the Church Divinity School of the Pacific in Berkeley, will deliver the sermon at 9 a.m. Commander G. B. Hall, USN, Ret., will preach at 11 a.m. Hall served as an instructor at the Naval Postgraduate School before his retirement. He is president of the student body at the Church Divinity School and a member of the All Saints' parish.

The Rev. David Hill begins a Bible study class discussing St. Mark's Gospel on Tuesday, Feb. 6 from 7:30-9 p.m. in the parish library.

CARMEL MISSION

The Carmel Mission will sponsor a rummage sale to benefit the Junipero School, Saturday, Feb. 4 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Clothing, household items, appliances, toys, games, books and other donated items will be on sale. Refreshments will be served. For more information, phone 624-1271.

The public is invited to the Junipero Serra School's annual science fair on Tuesday, Feb. 6 from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. in Crespi Hall. During the science fair, the California Mission replicas exhibit will be on display in the school library.

The Carmel Mission Altar Society will have its monthly meeting at 2 p.m., Feb. 8, in Crespi Hall.

WAYFARER

As part of the Diamond Jubilee, the Church of the Wayfarer's 10-month long celebration of 75 years in Carmel, the Scouts of the parish and the entire Scouting program will be honored this Sunday at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. The Rev. Dr. Paul R. Woudenberg will deliver the sermon, "The Benefits of Intelligence."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The title of the lesson-sermon is "Love." Services are at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday school, for young people up to age 20, begins at 11 a.m. The Christian Science Reading Room, on Lincoln near Fifth, is open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and on Sundays from 1:30-4:30 p.m.

PRESBYTERIAN

The Rev. Deane Hendricks will deliver the sermon at the 8:15 a.m., 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. services on Sunday. Church school, from nursery through adult classes, is at 9:30 a.m.

All Saints' to have new classrooms

Ground-breaking ceremonies for new classrooms at All Saints' Episcopal Day School took place early Monday morning at the school site in Carmel Valley.

The new structure, the Maureen Church Coburn

Building, will be ready for students in September. It will house an expanded pre-kindergarten and kindergarten program, and art and music classes for grades 1 through 8.

Ceremonies included a singing presentation by 14

4- and 5-year-olds who will attend classes in the new building. Holding shovels to help with the ground breaking, they sang a Woody Guthrie song, Bling Blang, Hammer with my Hammer.

Officiating at the ceremony were Headmistress Laurie Boone; the Rev. David Hill, rector of All Saints' Church; the Rev. Jesse Vaughn, dean and chaplain of All Saints' Day School; and program director Madeline Littlefield.

Also attending were special guests Milton Coburn, Dr. Lawrence Lippman, chairman of the building committee, parent and school board member Malcolm Millard, and other members of the school board, vestry teachers and friends.

Three dollmaking workshops planned at Thunderbird Bookshop

Professional dollmaker and costume designer Anne Dougal will conduct three dollmaking workshops at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Class enrollment is limited to 20 people; admission for each workshop is $15.

A resident of Southern California, Miss Dougal teaches dollmaking classes in Laguna Beach, La Jolla, Rancho Bernardo and San Diego.

She will present an overview of dollmaking Wednesday, Feb. 12; instructions on creating Missy Mousie are planned Wednesday, March 7; and Bunnies will be demonstrated Wednesday, March 28. All workshops are from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

To register or for more information, phone 625-1803.

Obituaries

WILLIAM R. GRUBER

Retired Army Brig. Gen. William Rudolph Gruber died last Saturday at Community Hospital following an apparent heart attack at his home in Carmel. He was 88.

Gruber, a resident of Carmel for over 30 years, was an authority on the defense of the Panama Canal and a career soldier. Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, he was commissioned by the Army in 1912 as a second lieutenant. During World War I, he received two battlefield commissions and was awarded the Silver Star three times.

After graduating at the head of his class at the Command Staff School in 1923, he attended the Army and Navy War Colleges.

He commanded one of the last horse-drawn artillery units and then took charge of one of the first mechanized units. He served as executive assistant to the Secretary of War for two administrations, supervising part of the construction of the Panama Canal.

At the beginning of World War II, Gruber served with Gen. Omar Bradley in the formation of airborne units. He received his fourth Silver Star when the small plane he was flying was attacked by Japanese aircraft.

Gruber was the founder and past president of the Old Capitol Club of Monterey. He is survived by his widow, Helen, of Carmel, and several nieces and nephews.

The family requested that donations be made to the donor's favorite charity.

JET LOUISE PORTER

Jet Louise Porter, 89, died Sunday following a lengthy illness in her home on Valley Way in Carmel.

Mrs. Porter, with her late husband Frank, pioneered development in many areas of Carmel Valley. She was born in her family's home on Mt. Toro. She and her husband moved to the Valley in the early 1920s. They worked with the Porter-Marquard Real Estate Agency for many years before retiring in 1968. Her husband died in 1977.

Survivors include a daughter, Alexandra Marrow of Carmel; a son, Paul Porter of Carmel; a sister, Mamie Percy of Carmel Valley; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be made to Community Hospital or to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael.

PEARL BOTT

Pearl Bott died Sunday at Community Hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 72 and lived in Carmel for two years.

Born in Denver, Colo., she was a member of the Carmel Foundation and Senior Citizens of Carmel.

Mrs. Bott is survived by two sons, William of Carmel and Kenneth of Los Gatos; a sister, Jeannette Kadish of Los Angeles; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Interment was in the Golden Gate Chapel in San Bruno.

MINNIE MAY ROBSON

Minnie May Robson died Friday of last week at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital after a long illness. A 32-year resident of Carmel, she was 91.

Miss Robson was a lifetime educator, serving as dean of women at several colleges. After her retirement, she founded the first senior citizens' center in Menlo Park, The Little House.

She is survived by a sister, Grace Calkins of Carmel; two nieces, Muriel Darling of Carson City, Nev., and Mrs. Norman Fisher of Pittsburgh, Pa.; a nephew, Robert Helliwell of Palo Alto and several great-nieces and nephews.

Cremation, under the direction of the California Cremation Society, was followed by the scattering of ashes at sea.

VIVE E. HARBER

Vive E. Harber, a 53-year resident of the Carmel area, died Saturday of last week after a long period of failing health. She was 72.

She was born in Sweden and came to Carmel with her husband, Floyd, in 1926. She was a member of the Zonta Club of Carmel, a lifetime member of the PTA, and secretary for the Church of the Wayfarer for 10 years.

Mrs. Harber is survived by a daughter, Louise Bratton of Lakeport; sons Victor and Arthur of Carmel Valley and David of Hayward; a brother, Nels Edquist of Fresno; 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Her husband died in 1959.

Memorial services were Wednesday at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula with the Rev. James Bracher officiating. Interment will be in the El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

The family asks that donations be made to the donor's favorite charity as a memorial.

BETSY P. PEYTON

Betsy P. Peyton, a 36-year resident of Carmel, died Thursday of last week at Eskaton Hospital following a long illness.

Mrs. Peyton was born in the Canal Zone and is survived by her husband, retired Col. Hamilton Peyton, U.S. Army, of Carmel; sons, Lt. Col. John Peyton, stationed in West Germany, and Thomas Peyton of Woodbridge, Va.; daughter, Jean P. Brennan of Concord, and six grandchildren.

The rosary was recited Friday of last week and a Mass of Christian burial was read Saturday at Carmel Mission Basilica.

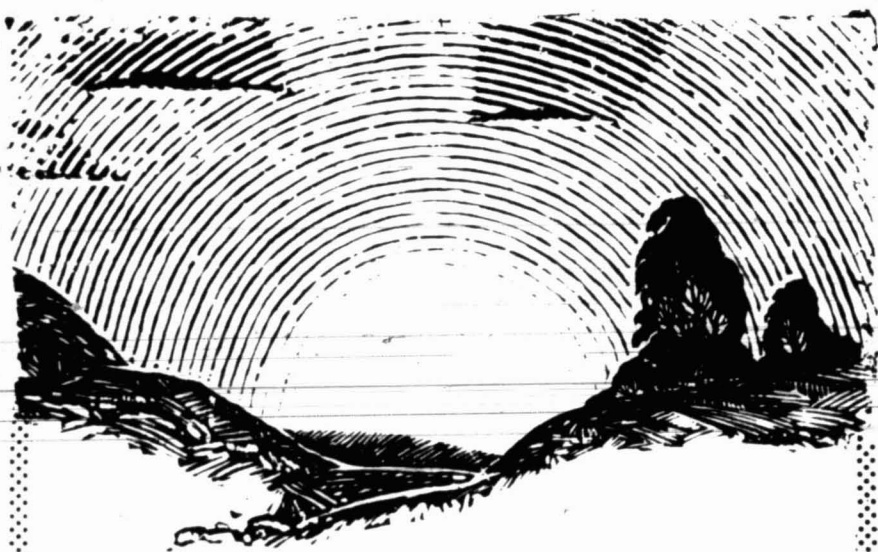

SHIRLEY ANN ROUSE

Shirley Ann Rouse, a real estate broker, died Tuesday of last week in her Carmel home. She was 48.

She was a broker for 10 years with the Seven Cities by the Sea real estate firm. A native of Marysville, she was a member of the Children's Home Society, the Alpha Phi sorority in San Jose and the Alpha Sigma sorority in Yuba City.

She is survived by her husband, Clifford of Carmel; her mother, Leah Cumiskey of Carmel; two daughters, Terry Winslow of Palo Alto and Cynthia Johnson of Belmont; two sons, Dwight and Lance Matheson, both of Carmel, and a grandson.

Services were Friday of last week at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, with the Rev. C. E. Wilson officiating. Interment will be at Cypress Lawn Cemetery in Colma.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

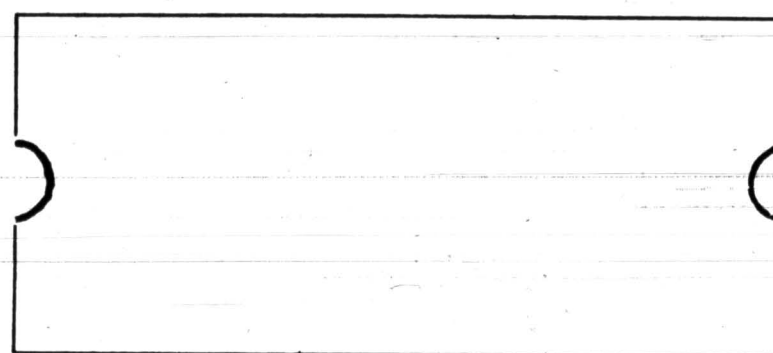

The Pine Cone is happy to be here and we always look forward to meeting our subscribers. As a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a FREE WANT AD every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by 5 p.m. Monday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 16 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to refuse to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads may be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

In The Sunshine Belt
Of Pebble Beach - $154,500

A three-bedroom, two-bath delight; you will immediately respond to the warmth, light and workmanship of this Daniels & House home. What lifts a home above the mundane is the care given to details which spell completeness to living -- such as: bedrooms large -- thank goodness! Master bedroom exposed slant/beam ceiling, sunbathing patio off of it, lovely dressing room and bath, two ample closets, parquet floors throughout, two-car garage, laundry room, enclosed and conveniently placed, includes washer and dryer. Living room also has exposed beam ceiling -- extended raised fireplace hearth is great for pillow sitting. Kitchen includes the latest Jennaire stove and dining area has a 15'6" birchwood counter with ample storage below. There is no doubt the sun shines on this rustic but dignified home.

Ranch Style Family Home

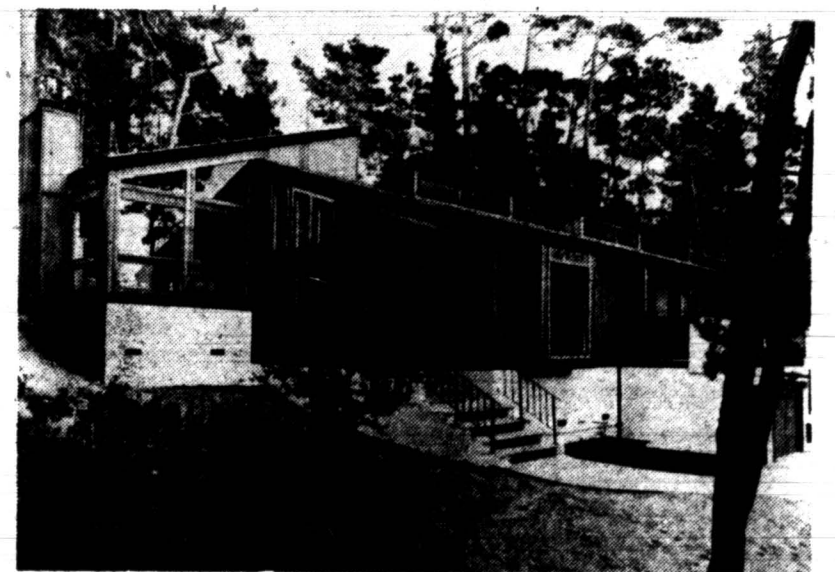

In choice Monterey Peninsula Country Club location, this family home offers three bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining room and extra guest suite with living room, one bedroom and bath with private entrance and deck. Open beam ceilings, hardwood floors, one-quarter acre lot, terra cotta tile dining room floor are just a few of the extra features. $149,500.

2 BDRMS., 1 1/2 BATHS, BIG SUR, $125,000

This is a rustic cabin situated on the sunny side of Sycamore Canyon. It has good access from a paved road, electricity, water and telephone. The living room has a large, rock fireplace. It's on over 7 acres of land near Pfeiffer State Beach. Bank financing is available to qualified buyers.

1-BDRM. HIWAY WITH GUEST HOUSE, $125,000

In fact, it's so well-hidden, you'll need a native guide (our associates are excellent) to find this home, which in fact is only 6 blocks to the Post Office. It is modern in design, has a large deck with a beautiful forest view. It's a small, but very interesting home.

2 BDRMS., 2 BATHS+ STUDIO & BATH

This is a super, traditional home in the Mid-Valley area, situated near tennis courts, golf courses and stables. The completely fenced grounds are beautifully landscaped, and have several bearing fruit trees. The detached, contemporary Artist's Studio has skylights and dramatic, floor-to-high-ceiling windows. It could be a guest house as it has its own bath. The main house has 2 master bedroom suites, beamed ceilings, excellent storage space. Part of the oversized, attached, completely-fenced double garage can be converted to another bedroom and bath and STILL leave a double garage. It's a pleasure to show at $225,000.

LIKE-NEW, 2-BDRM., 2-BATH NEAR TOWN

In fact, only 3 short blocks to the business district. This is a completely remodeled home in a wooded setting. The roof, plumbing, heating and electrical systems are either new or meet current code. An attractive home for $139,500.

CARMEL LOT NEAR TOWN AND BEACH

One of the few vacant lots available. It's priced at $119,500; it even has a little ocean view. What more can you say but "Where?" Call and we'll be delighted to tell you.

1 BDRM. WITH CHARM & A STUDIO, $135,000

This little jewel has one of the nicest living rooms we've seen in a small Carmel cottage. It has beamed-ceilings, and a large, concave, stone corner fireplace. There's a separate dining room, an updated kitchen and the detached studio has a full bath. It's a super charmer.

2 BDRMS., TASTEFULLY REMODELED, $137,500

You'll like this home the minute you step into the front patio and even more when you step in the front door. It offers almost ideal indoor-outdoor living, as it has two good outdoor living areas (one with BBQ) and it's in a particularly warm part of Carmel. There are 1 1/2 baths, skylights, large family/dining room and an oversized single-car garage with heated work area.

4 BDRMS., GUEST HOUSE, CARMEL HIGHLANDS

This older home, walking distance to the Highlands Inn, was extensively remodeled a few years ago. It has a separate dining room, 2 baths, a wood-shingle roof and a studio guest house over the detached, double-car garage. There is a little ocean view, too. The seller will finance at a favorable interest rate. $235,000.

CARMEL VIEWS $188,500

OPEN HOUSE

Sunday, February 4 • 1-4 p.m.
4295 Canada Lane -- Follow the signs off the Valley Road

Situated in a sun-filled valley of Carmel Views is this fine example of contemporary residential architecture. The house, in keeping with good architectural standards, is expressed as a two-story stucco enclosure, buttressed in a unique way with wood-sided elements which tend to embrace and cradle the main structure.

By day the residence is bathed in total sun and visible from three directions. At night the mass becomes a muted showcase inviting contemporary comfort.

The home features a two-story entry with open stair. Carpeting and finely textured walls throughout provide the basic continuity for living room, dining room, breakfast room, three bedrooms and two and one-half baths. Maple casework, color-coordinated kitchen and plumbing fixture complete the warm muted interior palette. To conserve energy, the home is fully insulated and so sited as to take full advantage of its southern exposure.

SPECIAL

LIKE AN EAGLE ON PEBBLE's 18TH (or an ace on the 17th) the thrill of a golfer's lifetime, we have a similar thrill for the Carmel house-hunter. It is on San Antonio between Seventh and Eighth - West side. The house also fronts on Scenic with a separate entrance leading into three bedrooms and two bathrooms and a family room. This is ideal for children as the path leads down to the gate on Scenic and is a stone's throw from the beach.

The San Antonio level is not visible from the street. It is down a long drive, and the entrance to the side through a gate into a lovely stone courtyard with fountain, curly oak trees, box-lined flower beds and is completely walled. This level has a gorgeous ocean view from Pt. Lobos to Pebble Beach! The living room has French doors from the front garden and patio. It has a cathedral ceiling, is all redwood painted white, with dark white planked floors. On this level is the master bedroom with the most sweeping view of all; its own deck, two dressing rooms with a connecting bath, and draperies matching the wallpaper. There is a second bedroom on this level with its own bathroom and a garden view. It also has matching wallpaper, draperies and bedspreads.

There are just too many extras to relate. It is one of a kind, with an artist's studio with north skylights, sink, mahogany counters and built-in shelves and drawers. There are four large storage units, one for an office, one for bikes, one for garden tools, and so on. The kitchen has all the appliances, plus a large pantry with a washer/dryer and freezer. There is a wine cellar, burglar alarm system to the police station, and much more. You will love the Carmel stone in the garden and all the established planting. It is near the beach and town, but completely secluded and quiet.

We think you will be surprised and pleased, and we're sure you'll agree it is well priced at $475,000.

Lines from Lois

Off

To The Crosby...

... just like everyone, we're heading for the fairways, but we live in Pebble Beach. We don't wait in long lines of traffic to get in and out of the gates. We know all the best parking places; all the best viewing spots, too.

Wouldn't you like to be like us?

You can, you know, if you have a Pebble Beach home. Every day, just as we do, you can enjoy the spectacular shoreline, miles of roads threading through Del Monte Forest, beautiful beaches and famed golf courses (only you will be more welcome on the latter than we are). Or you can watch whales, if you want to, or sunsets over the sea.

We know of two that may tempt you. Both have redwood exteriors and heavy shake roofs. Each is just steps away from Monterey Peninsula Country Club fairways, within walking distance of the 17 Mile Drive bordering the ocean, a short cart drive to the clubhouse and faces greenbelt where we like to browse.

One has three bedrooms, two baths, fireplace in the living room, family room, dining room with serving bar to the kitchen, and a double garage. The lot is fenced to keep us out but we can see it has a sprinkler system. $159,500.

The other has planting in front that we don't like to nibble and the back fence is too high for us to jump over. But you'll be able to admire recent redecoration in four bedrooms, two and a half baths, living room with fireplace, dining room, and a kitchen with breakfast area and a cozy sitting corner. Laundry and double garage, too. $174,500.

Hope To See You
Along The Fairways
Every Day!!

Carmel High offers alternative credit courses

Under a new policy approved by the school district board of trustees, Carmel High School students can now get class credit in ways other than by attending classes.

The board voted 5-0 to approve four alternative means of earning credit in accordance with a recent change in California education law.

Students may now earn credit:

- By examination: they may take a test and receive credit for a class never attended by proving competency in the skills the class teaches.

- By independent study: the student designs a minimum nine-week program which must be approved by the principal or his agent as an appropriate subject.

- Through other educational programs: students can earn high school credit by taking college courses, summer school, night school and other similar programs.

• Through "alternative educational experiences": this includes any programs supervised by personnel other than district teachers and conducted away from school. The experiences must be part of the existing curriculum and must be described in a specific written agreement between the student, his parents, the district and the outside agency.

Hearing aid program offered

The Behavioral Sciences Institute has announced the inception of a Hearing Aid Leasing Program. This plan will allow hard of hearing individuals to lease any high quality hearing instrument for a small monthly fee.

Interested individuals can contact Behavioral Sciences Institute at 375-4181.

'Laura' opens at Studio on Friday

Laura, the witty, suspenseful melodrama about a murder, its investigation and a series of surprises, will open Friday, Feb. 2 at the Studio Theatre/Restaurant, Carmel.

The 1940s Broadway hit became a classic motion picture starring Gene Tierney, Clifton Webb, Vincent Price and Dana Andrews; Otto Preminger directed the film. The plot involves a detective who investigates the murder of a protegee of a socialite-columnist. As he retraces her past, he falls in love with the dead girl.

In the Studio production, Rosemary Garrison plays Laura; James Jensen is Waldo Lydecker; John Atkinson portrays Mark MacPherson; and Harrison Shields is Shelby Carpenter. Diane Hall directed the play.

Dinner is served at 7 p.m. with curtain at 8:30 Friday and Saturday; both are one hour earlier Sunday.

For reservations, phone 624-1661.
